EXPLANATION.

Since the death of Mr. Manning Leonard, his children have sought to fill out the record of the Bridgewater Branch of the Leonard Family, by supplying some of the data lacking in his manuscript; and, without assuming that the record is complete, they now publish the book, making grateful acknowledgment to all who have so courteously replied to their requests for items.

In addition to the engraved portrait of himself at the age of twenty-four, which Mr. Leonard had modestly provided for the book, an artotype likeness made from his last photograph is given, that his readers may know the man to whom they are indebted for this record.

PREFACE.

While some seem to have little interest, and a few manifest a contemptuous indifference, in regard to their ancestry, most persons feel a desire to know something of their progenitors. There is quite certain to come in the life of every one who attains maturity, a time when he is led to make some inquiry, and perhaps research, into his family genealogy. It usually does not occur until a period when many of those who, from their extreme age were important links with the "long past," have departed, and thus valuable facilities for obtaining veritable information of one's progenitors are lost beyond recovery.

The early settlers of New England were so constantly occupied in subduing the forests, erecting rude dwellings, and procuring a scanty subsistence for their families, that they had but little time for making written records, even if they had the disposition, ability, and facility for doing so. And then, by the sudden attack of the Indians, and often complete destruction of their homes, all that had been written was frequently lost beyond replacement. Duxbury, which was the parent town of Bridgewater, lost all of its town records previous to 1654,—said to have been burnt. The Colony records of births and deaths previous to 1647 were also lost: and in 1838 all of the records of the town of Taunton were destroyed by fire. Though the materials have been so scanty, such has been the interest in family genealogy, and such the industry in gathering items from every source—family bibles, addresses, ecclesiastical and town records—and putting them into accessible and durable form, that most descendants of the Colonists can trace their family connection to the "first settler," with tolerable accuracy.

In my early years I used to listen with deep interest to the conversations between my aged grandmother and my parents in regard to their "connections," and some of them have never been forgotten.

In the year 1846 I was chosen by the heirs of an uncle who had died, childless and intestate, in Natchitoches, La., as attorney to settle his estate. He was of a family of thirteen children, and his eldest brother had a like number. Other brothers and sisters had considerable families, several had deceased,—and in some cases their children also,—leaving issue. To procure legal powers from all the heirs, I had of necessity to become somewhat acquainted with a large number of relatives living in many different states of the Union. About this time I procured a copy of the History of Bridgewater by Hon. Nahum Mitchell, which contains the fullest genealogical history of our branch of the family that has ever been published. I saw at once that his dates and connection of families did not agree with what I had gathered from my father and others. I sought his acquaintance and found he had already discovered errors which had occurred from the frequent repetition of Christian names in different families leading to misconnection, and a lack of carefully verifying dates and statements that had been furnished him. In an appendix to the later bound copies of his history, some of these errors were noted. With his characteristic courtesy and kindness he aided me in my researches and under his own hand gave me valuable information which will appear in its proper place. I had also some acquaintance with Hon. James Savage and sought to have in his great work, which was then in manuscript, a correction of the published errors in regard to our progenitors. Many of them, however, it will be seen, have been perpetuated.

I became acquainted (and in some cases intimately) with Mr. Samuel G. Drake, Dr. Nathaniel B. Shurtleff, Dr. Winslow Lewis, Mr. Wm. R. Deane, Mr. Wm. B. Towne, (all now deceased), Mr. John W. Dean, Mr. Wm. B. Trask, and others connected with the New England Historic Genealogical Society, of which I became first a resident and then a life member. Through Mr. Drake I received the New England Historical and Genealogical Register until his decease, and from the society since. The perusal of this publication, and the incidents narrated, awakened an interest in genealogical lore and have led to extensive research in order to reconcile the different statements regarding our family, or to learn what is false and what true, and to discover the missing links in our genealogical chain.

For some time I ardently cherished the purpose of publishing a very full and voluminous record of all those in this country bearing our family name, but I have met with so many obstacles that I have abandoned the plan. I am now content to combine, in as intelligible a form as I am able, the substance of what I have gathered by long labor and at considerable expense and leave the work for others to complete.

INTRODUCTION.

LEONARD. This is a very ancient name, and has been known for several centuries, both as a christian and surname.

Much has been written and published in regard to the nomenclature of surnames—their derivation and signification. Those who are curious in these matters can examine Camden's British Remains, published in London in 1637, Lower on English Surnames, Chambers', Fesenden's and Brande's Dictionaries. A very interesting article on Individual and Family Names was published in the N. E. Historical and Genealogical Register, 1848, Vol. II, page 162. It was written by Rev. William Cogswell, D. D., who was editor of the first volume of the Register, member of this society, also of the American Antiquarian and the Massachusetts Historical Societies, and was well versed in historical and antiquarian lore. He states that this is one of the class of surnames that originated from the christian name. The signification is, Lion-hearted, from Leo or Leon and ard. It seems strange that those who attained the honors of knighthood did not adopt a lion's head for their crest instead of a tiger's!

While some would say in the words of Cowper:

> "My boast is not that I deduce my birth
> From loins enthroned, the rulers of the earth.
> But higher far my proud pretensions rise—
> The son of parents passed into the skies."

others are ambitious to trace their lineage to the nobility of the old world. For the benefit of such, and of all others interested, an engraved copy of the coat of arms said to belong to the Leonard family is printed with description of that, and of that of the family of Lennard, Lord Dacre, which it will be observed are very similar with the exception of the motto.*

*Description of Leonard Coat of Arms: Arms—Or, (gold) on a fesse azure (blue) three fleur-de-lis argent (silver). Crest—Out of a ducal coronet or, a tiger's head argent. Motto—Memor et Fidelis.

Description of Lennard (Lord Dacre) Coat of Arms: Arms—Or, on a fesse gules (red) three fleur-de-lis of the first or field. Crest—Out of a ducal coronet or, a tiger's head argent. Motto—Pour Bien Desirer.

Those bearing the latter title were accustomed to spell the name both ways, and, notwithstanding what has been written to prove the contrary, there is but little doubt that "the Leonards are of the family of Lennard, Lord Dacre." Lord St. Leonards was a member of Queen Victoria's privy council and died in January, 1875, aged 93.

St. Leonards is a parish and famous watering place of England, in the county of Sussex adjoining Hastings, on the coast, 73 miles east of London. St. Leonard's Forest is in the same county near Horsham—occupies 10,000 acres and is an enclosed part of the ancient Andredswald or Wood of Anderida.

St. Leonard is a parish in England in the county of Devon, where is the West of England Deaf and Dumb Asylum. It is also a parish in Scotland, county of Fife; and a village in France, and a town near Limoges containing about 4,000 inhabitants. There are numerous villages in France bearing the name of St. Leon. St. Leonhard is the name of several towns in Germany. In this country there is St. Leonards a village in Calvert county, Leonardstown, capitol of St. Mary's county, both in Maryland; Leonardsville, a village in Madison county, New York; Leonardsburg in Delaware county, Ohio; Leonardville, Monmouth county, New Jersey; and Leonardville, Riley county, Kansas.†

The earliest genealogical account of any branch of the Leonard family in this country is that published in the Collections of the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1794, Vol. III, page 173, by Perez Fobes, LL. D. It is an Appendix to a Description of Raynham which contains an account of the Iron Works established by two members of the family in 1652 — the friendship exhibited towards them by King Philip on the breaking out of the Indian War in 1675, etc.

This was the most complete family genealogy that had ever been printed in New England, but, beside those of later years, very meagre. It was limited to one branch of the family, which is to be deeply regretted for Dr. Foles had a knowledge of the relation that the different branches in this country bore to each other. He contemplated publishing a more elaborate history, but died before it was accomplished, and whatever he had written, with other valuable papers, seems to have been lost. Mr. Wm. R. Deane prepared a more full account of this branch which was published in the Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. V, page 403, 1851, and an appendix in Vol. VII, page 71, 1853. Copies of these articles were stitched in a pamphlet and entitled, "A Genealogical Memoir of the Leonard Family: containing a full account of the first three generations of the Family of James Leonard, who was an early settler of Taunton, Mass."

This James, with brothers Henry and Philip, it is said, came to this country about 1650 from Pontypool, Monmouthshire, a county of England bordering the Bristol Channel, celebrated for its mines of coal and iron, beautiful scenery, and number of British and mediæval remains. It once belonged to Wales, but was made an English county by Henry VIII, early in the sixteenth century. Henry Leonard removed with his family to New Jersey: Philip settled in Duxbury and died without leaving male descendants.

A genealogy of John Leonard, of Springfield 1639, and descendants was published by Rev. John A. Vinton in the "Giles Memorial," 1864, page 279. This memoir was mainly compiled from a genealogy made by Mr. Elisha Clark Leonard of New Bedford in 1852. Mr. Leonard is, in the judgment of the writer, one of the most thorough and perfect of genealogists living. He has spent weeks in investigating the county records of Bristol at Taunton making transcripts of the conveyances by Leonards, etc., and has acquired more knowledge of the "Taunton Branch" of the family than any other person, living or dead. We sincerely hope, and have some reason to believe, that he will publish the result of his extensive researches. With profound gratitude I desire here to repeat my obligations to him for his great assistance and encouragement in my arduous work.*

I shall make no apology for the frequent use of the first person, singular, except that of convenience.

Rice Leonard was in Rehoboth in 1644 and one of the original proprietors of Attleborough in 1661. He had two daughters, Rachel and Sarah, and one son, Samuel, who died without male issue, therefore there are no descendants bearing the family name.

The descendants of Solomon of Duxbury, 1637, John of Springfield, 1639, James of Taunton and Henry of New Jersey are very numerous and are scattered all through this country. The evidences are very cogent, if not entirely conclusive, that all of them were related and from the same not very remote ancestor.

As has been stated, Perez Fobes, LL. D., knew the relation that the different branches of the family bore to each other. He was a native of Bridgewater—a descendant of John Fobes of Duxbury, one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater, and it is thought came to this country with Solomon Leonard. Dr. Fobes had a love for historical and antiquarian investigation and research, and possessed rare facilities for its gratification which he sedulously improved. He once wrote that he was acquainted with a man who had seen King Philip. He aided my father in fitting for college, was one of his professors in Brown University during his college course, and there was great intimacy between them to the close of Dr. Fobes' life, in 1812. He often spoke to my father of the connection between the branches of the family. If any written record was made of it by my father it has gone to oblivion with that made by Dr. Fobes.

*Mr. E. C. Leonard, d. in New Bedford, Mass., September 7, 1894, leaving in manuscript form a large amount of genealogical and historical material of inestimable value. A portion of this was ready for printing, and it is hoped his work will be completed and its publication not long delayed.

When in Europe in 1864, I visited Monmouthshire in the hope of finding some records of the family before their emigration to this country. I found the old records in Pontypool had been very badly kept and got no satisfactory information from them. Several persons bearing the name were living in the vicinity, and an aged man by the name of John Leonard, took me to the graveyard near the ancient church of Trevethan, not far from the town, where I found inscriptions recording the deaths, at an early date, of those bearing the names John and James.

A prominent gentleman, the acknowledged head of the family of Leonard, living in Buckingham Villas, Clifton—the beautiful environ of Bristol—and his family, took much interest in the matter. He bore the christian name of Solomon as did his father and grandfather before him. I was assured that not only this name, but also John, Jacob and Isaac, had been common in the family there for many generations; that they were dissenters and some of the family went to Leyden, and it was believed from there to America. In a correspondence with members of the family, continued for several years, this belief was confirmed.

I.

SOLOMON LEONARD.

The earliest settler in this country, bearing the family name, of whom we have a record, and the ancestor of what has long been known as the "Bridgewater Branch of the Leonard Family," must have been born about 1610 in Monmouthshire, or vicinity, in the southwesterly part of England.

He seems to have emigrated first to Leyden in Holland, probably with his father whose name it is believed was Samuel. There is some probability that they came to this country together –if so, the father must have died soon after. The exact period that Solomon emigrated to this country, and the place from which he embarked, it has been impossible to ascertain. Judge Mitchell, in his History of Bridgewater, says: "In 1629, thirty-five of the Leyden people, with their families, arrived at Plymouth, and in 1630, sixty more came. Many of the Bridgewater proprietors were doubtless among these."

It has been stated that he came with the family of Minister Robinson, but late investigations seem to prove that but one of the family, his son Isaac, came in 1631. It has also been stated that he came with Roger Chandler and perhaps Edmund Chandler, who were probably brothers. They were both taxed in Plymouth, (and admitted freemen), in 1633, and soon after were in Duxbury, where both had grants of land.

He was engaged in the service of the Colony Company in Plymouth for a time, but became one of the early settlers of Duxbury. Mr. Justin Winsor, in his history of this town, says it was settled by the people of Plymouth and that they were, many of them, of the highest respectability and in the colony affairs took prominent and active parts. Of the twenty subscribers to the civil compact, signed in the cabin of the Mayflower in November, 1620, who survived the fatal first winter, seven—Elder Brewster, Capt. Standish, Mr. Alden, Mr. Howland, Francis Eaton, Peter Brown and George Soule —became inhabitants of Duxbury. At one time it was of vast area, including within its bounds Pembroke, Hanson, Marshfield, part of Kingston, and Bridgewater.

The exact date of Solomon Leonard's settlement in Duxbury cannot be fixed. Mr. Winsor says the records show he was there when the town was incorporated, 1637. He had land at "Blue Fish," in what is now the northerly part of the village of Duxbury, near the bay.

The records of that period "that escaped the ravages of fire and flood," and notably of decay, from lack of proper care, are very meagre and imperfect, and so incomplete that the historian of the present day is often sorely perplexed and disappointed in his researches. I have ransacked all the musty archives and records of that period that are accessible and for those who may not have the opportunity of seeing the originals, verbatim copies will be given to some extent.

Hon. Thomas Spooner, in the "Spooner Memorial," states that Solomon Leonard was admitted freeman in 1643, but his name does not appear in the printed list of those admitted from Duxbury that year. He is enumerated among those "males that are able to beare armes from XVI yeares old to 60 yeares w^th^in the Towneshipp of Duxborrow 1643."

No record of conveyance of this land "lately bought of Edward Bumpas" can be found, or of the lands of Solomon Leonard when sold by him. It should be stated that in vast number of instances at this period, and for fifty years subsequently, deeds of purchase were never recorded.

Associated with the renowned Miles Standish, John Alden, Constant Southworth, William Bradford and others—54 in all—Solomon Leonard became one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater and one of the earliest settlers there: Mr. Savage says as early as 1645, but it must have been some years later. The grant of the plantation by the Court was not made until 1645, and the Indian title to the territory was made by deed of "the good old Massasoit," dated March 23, 1649. The town was not incorporated as a distinct township until 1656. It contained at one time about ninety-six square miles of territory, the greater part of Abington and what is now Hanson, were included within its bounds, as well as the "Four Bridgewaters."—the North Parish being now the thriving city of Brockton.

The first settlement was made near what is now West Bridgewater. "Each settler had at first a grant of a house lot of six acres on the town river, then called Nuckatest or Nunketetest, an Indian name in close affinity with that of the pond from which it flows, now called Nippenicket, formerly written Neapnucket or Neapnuncket. The first lots were taken up in West Bridgewater, and the first houses built, and first improvements made there; and the settlement was called after the name of the river, Nunketest, or Nunckety, sometimes Unkety. These Indian names were variously written—in Governor Hinckley's deed of confirmation, the pond itself is called Unketest. The plantation bore the more general appellation of Satucket. These house lots were contiguous and the settlement compact, with a view to mutual aid, when common protection and defence against the Indians should be required, and extended on each side of the river." [History of Bridgewater.] Solomon Leonard's house-lot seems to have been near the center. On this he erected a humble habitation that was probably the dwelling place of himself and family to the close of his life.

After a faithful and indefatigable search of many years it is hard to be obliged to say that no record can be given of the family name of his wife, the date of their marriage, or the births of their children. We only know that she bore the excellent name of Mary, which has been so creditably perpetuated in the families of her descendants. It is sad to realize that so much of our knowledge of the family is dependent upon tradition which is often unreliable.

They were undoubtedly married before 1640 and had a large family of children, most of them probably born in Duxbury and several dying while young. As they had aided in the subduing and settlement of the two towns, their lives must have been filled with almost ceaseless care and labor, with few conveniences and no superfluities. Their dwelling house, like others of that period, was probably made from hewn logs, with the spaces filled with clay: the chimney, of sticks or stones and plastered outside and in with clay, was built against one end on the outside of the house. Their clothing was of homespun woolen, flax, or hemp, supplemented perhaps, with leather made from the skins of deer. Their food consisted of various preparations of Indian corn, beans, rye or wheat bread, a few vegetables, fish, clams, lobsters, wild game, and in their season, the berries and wild fruit that were common in New England: beef and mutton were luxuries seldom indulged in, and neither potatoes, tea, nor coffee had been heard of. Their dishes, doubtless, were few and mainly of wood, with perhaps a plate or two of pewter.*

* A very vivid impression of the lives of the early emigrants to New England may be gained from the accurate and intensely interesting book from the press of Ticknor & Co., "The Pilgrim Republic," written by the late Mr. John A. Goodwin, and also from the stories by Mrs. Jane (Goodwin) Austen.

They were uneducated, and were evidently among the "rude forefathers," but were respectable, honest, industrious, frugal, and thrifty, and these worthy traits have been transmitted to their descendants to the present day.

A church was formed in Duxbury as early as 1632; and Rev. Ralph Partridge, "a man of pious and blameless life, gentleness of spirit, and meekness of heart," was the minister from 1637 to his death in 1658. Whether they were members it is impossible to state, as the records of the church were burned with those of the town. Nor can we tell if they were members of the church in Bridgewater, which was organized on its first settlement. Rev. James Keith was their first settled minister, ordained in 1664, and continued until his death in 1719. He was from Scotland, educated at the University of Aberdeen, "a worthy man, faithful shepherd, and able divine," on intimate terms with Increase Mather, Judge Sewell, and the leading men of that day. He was a fine penman and wrote many of the deeds, wills, etc., of his parishioners, and, without doubt, kept a careful church record, but it cannot be found. If accessible to the historian of that period, what aid it would give!

At the Second Centennial Anniversary of the Incorporation of Bridgewater, June 3, 1856, Hon. Emory Washburn,* in an address delivered on the occasion, said,—"In selection of a minister, the town seems to have been particularly fortunate, and he seems to have stamped his own character upon this community.

"Though in the very infancy of the town its inhabitants had shown the interest they felt in the cause of education, by contributing twelve pounds, in Indian corn, for the benefit of Harvard College, I do not find corporate action for establishing schools within the town till about the year 1700, when 'a scholar who came out from England, whose name is Thomas Martin,' was engaged for four years to keep a school in four places in the town in each year,—three months in each place. But, though entering late into the field, we are warranted, from its whole history, in believing that few towns have been more uniform or consistent in supplying to the young the means of education. Though there were among the early settlers, few who laid claim to much scholarship, there were none who wanted that general intelligence and practical good sense so much more useful to men in their condition. There was in this respect a remarkable uniformity among them, and scarcely if any, less remarkable identity in their religious faith and observance of their moral duties. And, as an evidence of this it is believed by those who have made it a subject of investigation, that drunkenness and its kindred vices were unknown among them; and not a single conviction of an inhabitant of the town, for any crime involving moral turpitude, was had while Plymouth existed as a colony!

"When a better system of religion or of practical faith than this can be discovered, the world may begin to dispense with the old-fashioned notions of Robinson and Brewster. And yet it was not because the men of that day were wanting in spirit or energy or enterprise.

"In speaking of those who gave a character to the first generation, and whose teaching and influence trained up those who were to be worthy to succeed them, I must not pass over the wives and mothers, who came here into the wilderness to give to the spot its strongest attraction, the simple charm of home. They came here while the howl of the wolf was yet heard from the deep forest around them at midnight. Often and again did they clasp their little ones, with more than a mother's tenderness, as they saw the shadowy form of the savage stealthily prowling around their scattered dwellings; or waited in fearful suspense for the return of a husband from the bold forays in which they sought for the foe in his lair.

"But history does not tell of a mother's courage that quailed, or a woman's fortitude that shrunk, amidst these dangers."

Hon. Lemuel Shaw,* Chief Justice of Massachusetts, said: "In the first place the founders were actuated and governed, in all their thoughts and in all their movements, by high religious and moral principle. They were not adventurers who had left their country for a time to mend their fortunes and then return; they came to seek a permanent abiding place, to establish a home for themselves and their descendants, which should satisfy their cherished ideas of a pure, religious commonwealth. They came with little property; but the means on which they relied,—and on which, as the event proved, they might rely with success,—next to an undoubting faith in the providence of God, were earnest minds and willing hands.

"But it is not on their religious character, however, that I would dwell; but I do wish to ask your attention to their high moral principles. In my judgment they were truly and conscientiously governed by a principle of strict integrity, a pure sense of exact justice, of strict equality of rights in the distribution and enjoyment of all civil and social benefits and advantages.

"But next to their religious character and the high-toned, strong sense of morality, of justice and integrity, or perfect equality of rights, which marked their conduct in all their social and political dealings and relations with each other, I consider that the remarkable growth in advancing from poverty to competency, to wealth, and to all the refinements of an advanced civilization, are mainly attributable to two qualities,—industry and frugality. Labor, honest labor, even hard and persevering labor, in a laudable and honest calling, brought no discouragement, no want of respect, no loss of social position. This was a general and pervading feeling, and extended to all classes and to both sexes: mothers and daughters, as well as fathers and sons, were actuated alike by a common self-devotion to useful industry, to advance the common interests of the family.

"I wish to express for myself, and my contemporaries of the present time, a deep feeling of gratitude, veneration, and filial affection, for our female ancestors. Though less conspicuous, their duties were not less important and efficient. Animated by an abiding sense of religious dependence, and sustained by an unshaken faith; governed by an entire devotion to duty, and in self-sacrificing spirit; without display, and without a thought of being applauded or noticed;—they proceeded in the performance of their appropriate duties with a quiet but persevering energy, which did much to mould the characters of their sons and daughters to honor and virtue, and elevate the tone of society by impressing it with something of their own pure and lofty spirit.

"These virtues and characteristics were not rare, exceptional, and occasional, but everywhere abounded as the leading characteristics of the wives and mothers of our early ancestors, and tended to give to society formed under domestic auspices a character of high excellence, though still little advanced in wealth."

Hon. James M. Keith said, "There is a beauty and moral sublimity in the patient devotion to duty, manifested in the daily life of the conscientious Christian minister, which appeals even to what some consider the callous heart of the legal advocate in tones more thrilling than the highest-wrought periods uttered from the rostrum.

"The eloquence of such a life was shown by the Rev. James Keith, the first minister of Bridgewater, for more than fifty-five years, amidst the toils, the privations, and the dangers of a colonial settlement, in the forests around the spot on which we are assembled, in the faithful discharge of the duties of his ministry, till called to his reward in 1719.

"The first minister of Bridgewater did not preach, nor did his hearers practice, a sickly sentimentality, which showed more sympathy for the criminal than love for the observance of law: but he taught, and they believed in a willing obedience to law, and in the speedy punishment of its violators. They devoutly believed in prayer, and trusted in God: but they also trusted in their own right arms to achieve their defence. When attacked by the Indians, whom they had treated with uniform kindness, they did not abandon their homes, as advised by the timid of other settlements, nor trembling wait for Omnipotence specially to interpose for their deliverance: but, seizing their weapons with resolute hearts, they attacked the foe, and drove him from their settlement."

Although all their lives deprived of the privileges of instruction by the school-master, and the appliances of the schools that afterwards became so common, Solomon Leonard and his family must have acquired instruction and growth in grace, refinement, and virtue, from the daily intercourse with their neighbors, some of whom perchance of more culture and intelligence; and the ministration, instruction, and example, of such pious, faithful and beloved ministers as Rev. Ralph Partridge and Rev. James Keith.

His name appears once more before his death on the Colony Records, Vol. 3, page 160, March 4, 1658–9. "An Inquest was held on the body of an English Man which some Indians took up out of the Riuer of Tetacutt, a little below Nemaskett.

"Wee found noe blemish about the man that should in any way cause his death, but as we conceive was drowned accidentally."

He was associated on the inquest with the following citizens of Bridgewater, nearly all of whom we find prominently connected with the early history of the town. "Samuel Edson, Nathaniell Willis, John Willis, John Vopes, Arthur Harris, John Hayward, sen^{r}, Mark Laythrope, Thomas Hayard Jun^{r}, William Snow, Lawrence Willis, Guydo Bayley, Nathaniel Haward, and John Carew."

Soon after this period he seems to have acquired the respectful title of "Goodman Lennerson," which he bore until his death. It has been impossible to ascertain when this event occurred. He was probably buried in the ancient grave-yard at West Bridgewater, "but no man knoweth of his sepulchre unto this day:" and, strange as it may seem, the same is true of all the members of his family! Judge Mitchell, in his History of Bridgewater, says he died in 1686, and this error has been repeated by Mr. Savage and by innumerable followers. This seems very strange for both of these gentlemen were familiar with the Court Records of Plymouth, the records of deeds there, and the Proprietor's Records of Bridgewater, either one of which would have shown that he must have died many years before the period named. Judge Mitchell also says, "his estate was settled by his son Samuel and was the first settlement recorded in Plymouth Probate Court." Mr. Savage notices this statement, and seems to take exceptions to it, but makes no explanation. I fail to find any record of the settlement of the estate. But few papers relating to transactions during that period can be found. At the time of King Philip's war, and subsequently, the anticipated or actual raids of the Indians occasioned frequent hasty removals of the Probate and other papers and records, for safety, which resulted in serious loss. For several years the whole country was agitated and absorbed in these Indian wars and nearly everything else seems to have been left to "take care of itself." It is quite impossible, in these peaceful times, for us to have any conception of affairs at that period. The town of Bridgewater ordered the meeting house and minister's house to be fortified, powder and ball to be procured, and pay for soldiers provided. "The fortification about the meeting house to be made with half trees, seven feet high above the ground, six rods long and four rods wide, beside the flankers."

The following shows the action of the colony. Colony Records, Vol. 5, page 176, October 4, 1675. "Memorand: that the Court proclaimed a sollemne day of humilleation, to be observed by fasting and prayer which was observed by theire order on the 14th of October 1675 throughout this jurisdiction, to humble our soules, and seeke and begg the Lord's healp in our psent troubles, by reason of the Indians, theire psisting on in theire hostillitie and barbararous creweltie and outrage against the English.

"It is ordered by the Court, that during the time of publicke danger every one that comes to the meeting on the Lord's day bring his armes with him, and furnished with att least six charges of powder and shott, vntill further order shall be given, vnder the penaltie of 2ˢ for every such defect, to be levied by distress, by the constable, by order of any of the comission officers, for the townes vse.

"This Court, takeing into theire serious consideration the tremendous dispensations of God towards the people of Dartmouth, in suffering the barborus heathen to spoile and destroy most of theire habitations, the enimie being greatly advantaged thervnto by theire scattered way of liuing, doe therefore order, that in the rebuilding or resettleing therof, that they soe order it as to liue compact together, att least in each village, as they may be in a capassitie both to defend themselves from the assault of an enimie, and the better to attend the publicke worship of God, and ministry of the word of God, whose carelesnes to obtaine and attend vnto, wee fear, may haue bine a provocation of God thus to chastise theire contempt of his gospell, which wee earnestly desire the people of that place may seriously consider off, lay to hart and be humbled for.—

"Alsoe this Court doth order, that the people of Middleberry doe attend the like course in theire rebuilding and resettleing, as is ordered for Dartmouth."

The settlement at Dartmouth, 25 miles distant from Bridgewater, was attacked by the Indians several months before this date, many of the houses burned and the inhabitants slain. The people of Middleborough only about ten miles distant, all fled to Plymouth for protection and all their houses were burned. At a later period, Bridgewater was savagely attacked, but the people courageously and successfully defended themselves. Though very many of the men of this town were engaged in the war from the very beginning to its close it has been stated that not one was slain.

In the Records of Deeds of Plymouth Colony, Book 3, page 199, a confirmatory deed from Samuel Leonard to his brother John is recorded which states: "Forasmuch as my father Sollomon Leonard of Bridgewater while he was living did with my mother fully and firmly bestow on my brother John Leonard fifty acres of land being and buting on the south or southwesterly syde of Punkatest river next adjoining unto Elder Brett his fifty acre Lott that he bought or exchanged with Robert Latham on the one syde and unto my land on the other syde with all the meddow—and not having made Deed of Gift unto my brother John Leonard being prevented by death—I samuell Leonard—confirm—my hand and seal this first of the third month May 1671.

The following is from Plymouth Colony Records: Court Orders. Vol. 5, page 179, October 27, 1675.

"In reference vnto the dispose of Sollomon Leonardson, of Bridgewater, deceased, the Court haue ordered, that such pticulars as belong to Samuel Leonardson, the eldest son of the said Leonardson, being firstly sett apart, viz. & fifty acrees of vpland, lying on the southsyde of Nunckatateesett River, and twenty more adjoining to it, on the northerly syde therof, and twelue acrees lying att the town of Bridgwater, on which the house standeth, and three lotts of meddow, containing two acrees and an halfe, or thereabouts, to a lott, and fifty acrees of land appertaining to John Leonardson, the second son of the said Sollomon Leonardson, and all debts and dues owing to any from the estate being first payed, the Court doth order, settle and distribute the remainder as followeth :—

"Viz. &, that Samuell Leonardson, the eldest son of the said Sollomon Leonardson, shall haue a double portion, with what hee hath alreddy receiued from him, of his estate, both real and psonall, according to law, and the remainder to be equally deuided amongst the reste of the children in equall and alike proportions, prouided that what any of them haue receiued of theire fathers estate be likewise reconed onward to them off theire ptes.

"This Court haue graunted ltres of adminnestration vnto Samuell Leonardson to adminnester on the estate of Sollomon Leonardson, deceased: and the Court doe request Elder Brett and Mr Samuell Edson to be supervisors and assistant vnto the said adminnestrator, in things proueing difficult relating to the pmises."

In a search which I made at the Probate Office in Plymouth some years ago I found, among the miscellaneous papers that had "escaped the ravages of the war," the original bond given by Samuel Leonard to settle his father's estate. The following is a copy:—

"Know all men by these presents that I Samuel Leonardson of the towne of Bridgewater in the Jurisdiction of New Plymouth, Carpenter, do acknowledge myself hereby to stand bound unto the Govenor and Court of Plymouth aforesaid in the penall sum of one hundred pound for the payment of which sum well and truly to be made I bind myself my heirs executors and administrators, firmly by these presents, sealed and given this 27 of October 1675.

"The condition of the above written obligation is such that whereas the above bounden Samuel Lenardson hath obtained letters of administration, to administer on the estate of Solomon Lenardson of the towne of Bridgewater in the Colone aforesaid, weaver. If therefore the said Samuel administrator shall and do pay all such debt accounts, of his said administration, and be reddy to give an account, thereof unto the said Court when by them required and keep and save harmless the said Gov. and Court from such damage as may acrew unto them by his said administration That then this obligation to be void and of non effect or otherwise to remaine in full force strength and vertue.

Samuel leonard {Seal}

Signed sealed and delivered in the presence of
*William Bearsstow
Robert Stetson."

Why legal steps were not sooner taken to settle the estate we can only conjecture. Perhaps efforts to do this by agreement were made and failed. Possibly it may have been arranged to defer it until the death of the widow, which had doubtless now occurred, as no mention is made of her and no provision granted in the order of the Court.

In the administrator's bond Solomon Leonard is called "weaver." This is the only instance that has been found where he has been so called. In all legal instruments of that day it was the custom to name the employment of the parties. It is possible that he may have served an apprenticeship at weaving, in his early years and followed it to some extent through life, but more probable that he had become unable to perform the hard work of the farm and the last work he did was weaving.

Although copies of many documents have been given, it seems proper, before proceeding to the history of the second generation, to add the following from the Proprietor's Records of Bridgewater, Book I, page 92:

"The lands of Samuel Leonard John Leonard Isaack Leonard and Jacob Leonard hear in the town of Bridgewater February '79—Imprimis—Samuell Leonard is as followeth, twelve acres of land wheare he now dwelleth be it more or less being

At the top of page 93 is entered:

"Lands of Solomon lenord.

A long blank space is then left, apparently to make additional records, and lower down:—

"Five akers for Isaac lenord at the head of his twenty five acres where his house stands."

On page 94 is "A Plan of lands bought of the Leonards by David Perkins, laid out 21 June 1688." I was assured by Williams Latham, Esq., whose researches made him competent authority in such matters, that this tract covered a part of the grounds of the Bridgewater Iron Works. He also stated that the lands formerly owned by the Leonards covered a considerable part of the present village of Bridgewater.

A grant of land seems to have been made to the family by the Plymouth Colony at "Saconett" after the father's death and as the writer has been unable to trace it, he will give further records in the hope that others may be more successful.

It will be observed that in the early records the name is written in a variety of ways. Judge Mitchell in his history of Bridgewater, says: "The name was sometimes written Leonardson, Lennerson, or Lenner, but by the family themselves always written Leonard." It was quite common at this period to distinguish the son from the father by adding "son" to the name. In some cases the additional syllable was permanently adopted.

SAMUEL LEONARD[2], son of Solomon[1] and Mary Leonard of Duxbury, born there before 1645, m. 1, Abigail Wood* of Plymouth before 1676. She was the daughter of John and Sarah Wood of Plymouth, and sister to Mary who m. 1, Rev. John Holmes, the second minister of Duxbury, Dec. 11, 1661, and 2, Maj. William Bradford of Plymouth, (his third wife) about 1677.

But little in regard to his early history has been obtained. In his administrator's bond he calls himself "carpenter," but in deeds of later date "husbandman" and "planter." He lived in Bridgewater at the time of his marriage, having built a house upon his father's land—a common thing for sons to do at that time—having assurance that a title would be given at some future date. He became an early proprietor of Worcester, where his brother Jacob had been living several years, and removed to that place probably before 1690 and was living there when his only son Samuel was taken captive by the Indians in 1695. About this time he seems to have removed to Norwich, Conn., and bought land in Preston on the opposite side of the Shetucket river. He was probably led to this place by the fact that some of Major Bradford's family had located here, also several of his old friends and neighbors from Duxbury and Bridgewater, among the number Josiah and Miles Standish (son and grandson of the renowned Capt. Miles Standish of the Mayflower) and Dea. Caleb Fobes. He was a constituent member of the first church in Preston, formed Nov. 16, 1698, when Rev. Salmon Treat was ordained as pastor. Mr. Treat resigned March 14, 1744, and died January 6, 1762, aged 90.

The following is taken from the Church Records: "The following having been members of other churches in full com-

Before the first communion eleven females joined, among the number Marah Fobes wife of Caleb Fobes, Dorithy Witter wife of Ebenezer Witter, and Mrs. Standish wife of Josiah Standish. Of what church he had previously been a member we have no means of learning. It is reasonable to conclude that his first wife was then dead and about this time he married 2. Deborah ——. Whose daughter she was it is impossible to tell. He was intimate with the family of John Leonard of Springfield who were relatives: the youngest daughter, Deborah, has never been traced, perhaps this was she. It is believed that they had a daughter Abigail, though no record of birth or baptism has been found. The church records give the baptism of a daughter Phebe, Oct. 17, 1703. He seems then to have acquired the title that had been given to his father before his death—"Goodman Leonardson."—and must have been nearly or quite sixty years of age. His wife was admitted to full communion with the church, Nov. 4, 1716. I have spent much time, and employed others, in the examination of records, but have never learned how he acquired his title to land there. The tradition is that he purchased it of the Indians. He seems to have lived near Pachaug in what is now the town of Griswold. In Miss Caulkins' History of Norwich he is mentioned as one of the appraisers of the estate of Joseph Benjamin, June 5, 1704, who was also from Massachusetts and a friend and neighbor. He sold all his lands in Worcester to Rev. Benjamin Allen of Bridgewater with the exception of a house lot on the west side of Quinsigamond Lake where he probably lived when in Worcester.* This he conveyed to John Beman

"E. W. Lincoln, Esq.,

My Dear Sir:—I am quite sure that within the bounds of the new Park, at the Lake, once stood the house of Samuel Leonard of Bridgewater. And it was from that house that his son Samuel was stolen by the Indians in the year 1696. Investigations thus far point to the spot on the hill, where the old cellar-hole is found, as being the site, or near the site, where the old log-house of Samuel Leonard stood. It would seem the best natural location for his house on that beautiful rise of ground. About one year after the capture of Samuel Leonard, or Leonardson, his master took part in the descent on the town of Haverhill, Mass., and succeeded in capturing Mrs. Dustin and Mrs. Neff. The story of their capture and escape, by killing the Indians, will be found on page 185 of Barber's Historical Collections of Massachusetts, and forms an interesting item to the history of Worcester and her new park; for I am quite sure that it was from that territory that the Leonard boy was taken. * * * * I shall have to go to Boston now before I can connect all the titles to the land from Leonard down to present owners, which I hope to do.

of Deerfield by deed dated Mar. 21, 1718–19. It is through this deed, or rather the record of it, in Registry of Deeds at Cambridge, (Book 20, page 233), that a knowledge of the name of his last wife is obtained. One of the witnesses to the deed was Rachel Leonard believed to be a daughter of John Leonard or of Rice Leonard of Rehoboth who was probably visiting, or living with him at this time. Under date of May 19, 1718—eight days after death of his only son Samuel—for "a valuable consideration, with which I am satisfied and well contented" he conveyed to his son-in-law, Thomas Clarke, of Norwich, all his right and title to "all ye commons and unlaid-out lands within ye township of Preston all and every parcel thereof which by any way or means shall or may arise therefrom, & all divisions or distributing of s[d] lands according to my right" etc. This deed was acknowledged Dec. 21, 1719, and recorded Jan. 19, 1720. The grants confirmed under it were very numerous.

On the formation of the North Church of Preston—now the First Congregational Church of Griswold—Nov. 30, 1720, his name is second on the list of members, preceded by that of Hezekiah Lord, who was ordained and installed that day, and continued the pastor of this church until his death, June 23, 1761—over forty years. As the name of his wife is not included in the list of members, (though those of his daughter Mercy, with her husband Richard Adams, and Lydia, widow of his son Samuel, are), it is reasonable to conclude that she had deceased. This is the last record of him that has been found and it is probable that he died soon after.

His children were:

By first wife, Abigail

8. †Mary,[3] b. —; d. —; m. 1700 Edward Newton.
9. †Mercy,[3] b. —; d. Dec. 24, 1749; m. Richard Adams.
10. †Elizabeth,[3] b. —; d. —; m. July 10, 1703 Thomas Clark.
11. †Samuel,[3] b. about 1683; d. May 11, 1718; m. Lydia ——

By second wife, Deborah

12. Abigail,[3]? b. —; d. —; m. July 4, 1722 Isaac Reed, b. Aug. 31, 1699 son of Josiah & Elizabeth (Arresdale) Reed, of Norwich, Conn.

    Children—Abigail Reed,[4] b. Apr. 29, 1723. Ammity Reed,[4] b. July 10, 1725. Isaac Reed,[4] b. July 4, 1729.

13. Phebe,[3] baptized Oct. 17, 1703.

JOHN LEONARD,[2] (Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding: b. in Duxbury about 1645: m. Sarah, supposed to be one of the "three sisters," daughter of Roger Chandler, about 1670.

Plymouth Colony Records, Vol. 4, page 110, Oct. 3, 1665. "One hundred and fifty acrees of land are graunted by the Court vnto the three sisters, the daughters of Roger Chandler viz. &, to each of them fifty acrees lying between the Bay line and the bounds of Taunton, according to the desire of John Bundey."

The Taunton Records show that ten acres at Cranberry Meadows, North Purchase, in right of the Court grant to the three daughters of Roger Chandler, was confirmed to John Leonard of Bridgewater, July 12, 1692.

He seems to have had less of the migratory spirit than his brothers possessed, for all his life, excepting a few years of childhood, was spent in Bridgewater. He acquired more general knowledge than any other member of the family, and held positions of more prominence in the town. He was evidently intelligent, and much respected, often employed in fixing boundaries of grants of land, divisions, etc. He died in the year 1699, leaving to his widow, five sons and one daughter—all of age but the latter—a large tract of valuable land extending into what is now the beautiful village of Bridgewater. A partition of his estate was made by Elihu Brett, Samuel Edson, David Perkins, John Washburn, and Capt. Josiah Edson, Aug. 30, 1701: which is recorded in Probate Records, Plymouth, Book 1, page 360.

Their children were—

14. John,[3] the date of his birth and death have never been ascertained. Judge Mitchell has confounded him with his nephew, John[4] (61), the eldest son of Josiah[3] (17). His share in his father's estate was the homestead, to be held with his mother during her lifetime. After her decease, by deed dated Mar. 6, 1709–10, he conveyed it to his brother Moses, and went to live with him at Marlborough, and probably continued with him, unmarried, until his death. He was with him in Worcester as late as Feb. 25, 1726.

15. Enoch,[3] b.—: d.—: m. Feb. 12, 1706 Elizabeth Hooper, daughter of William and Susannah Hooper of Reading, b. July 8, 1689. There is uncertainty in regard to this family. They had children, Enoch,[4] b. in Bridgewater Dec. 25, 1707, m. Abigail Perkins of Hampton, N. H., youngest sister of Martha who m. Ephraim Leonard[4] (80.)

Probably several other children, then—Elizabeth,[4] b. in Bridgewater Sept. 17, 1719. The father, or the son, built what was known as "Enoch's Dam" on Town River. Under date May 1, 1717, Enoch Leonard deeds to Nich[s] Byram Jr. for £500 "3 score acres where I dwell." Feb. 14, 1737, for £600, Enoch Leonard conveys to Solomon Leonard "the homestead where I live." Apr. 17, 1744, Enoch Leonard and wife Abigail deed to Sy[l] Blossom "20 acres of our homestead, next to Rich[d] Davenport." No trace of the family afterwards has been found. (There was an Enoch in Killingly, Conn., 1760. See Hist. Windham County, p. 78.)

16. †Moses,[3] b. —: d. —: m. 1, 1705 Mercy Newton. m. 2, Aug. 8, 1716 Mrs. Hannah (Woods) Witherbee: m. 3, (pub. Nov. 25, 1757), Mrs. Sarah (——) Hall.

17. †Josiah,[3] b. —: d. —: m. 1, Nov. 2, 1699 Marjoram Washburn: m. 2, Nov. 21, 1717 Abigail Washburn.

18. †Joseph,[3] b. —; d. —; m. Nov. 19, 1712 Hannah Jennings.

19. Sarah,[3] b. —: d. —: m. July 28, 1708 Thomas Washburn.

JACOB LEONARD,[2] (Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, b. in Duxbury, about 1647, m. first, it is supposed, Phebe Chandler, daughter of Roger Chandler, one of the "three sisters"—probably about the time he became of age. She must have died before 1679, for about this time he married his second wife. Where he lived after his marriage with his first wife, and where her death occurred, it is impossible to tell. The tradition is that he was with the earliest settlers of Quinsigamond, (Worcester), if so, he was driven off, as were the others, by the Indians in 1675. The family may have tarried for awhile in Marlborough, but probably during most of King Philip's war were in Bridgewater as that was considered more secure from the attacks of the Indians than the newer towns.

He was in Weymouth in 1679, and married, second, Susanna, a daughter of Samuel and Experience (Phillips) King of that town, granddaughter of "Goodman (John) King senior," one of the original proprietors of Mendon. She was born in Weymouth May 6, 1659, and died in Bridgewater before 1730. They lived a few years in W. where their oldest two daughters were born. Under date of Jan. 28, 1681, "John Aldrich, sometime of the town of Mendon, now of the town of Bridgewater, Taylor, of the one party and Jacob Leonardson of Weymouth," conveys, "in exchange, all my inheritance lying in ye town of Mendon aforesaid, which was given me by my father George Aldrich." (The latter was also an original proprietor of Mendon.) In exchange, Jacob Leonardson conveys to John Aldrich, "All my Right & Inheritance in said Bridgewater, namely 25 acres of upland lying at a place known by the name of Indian field next unto my Brother Isaac Leonardson's 25 acres of Land Butting and Bounded as his is Expressed in the Deed Given as Part of my father's Inheritance by my Bro[r] Samuel and likewise an equal Share in all the Land that is to be laid out of my father's Purchase with the rest of my Brethren, Reserving a double Portion for my Eldest Bro[r] & twenty-five acres for my Brother Solomon.

"All which fore[sd] Lands already laid out & to be laid out, & All the afore[sd] 25 acres of upland with the forementioned equal Share with my Brethren in the Division belonging to my father's Purchase both upland & meadow" etc. The deed was acknowledged before Samuel Thaxter, June 28, 1712.

Feb. 4, 1681, John Aldrich conveys all this property to Samuel Leonardson in exchange for other lands in Bridgewater. In the latter's deed he calls himself "Samuel Leonardson of Bridgewater, Planter." It is also signed by his wife Abigail, and both acknowledged before Wm Bradford Dep. Gov[r] Sept. 28, 1683.

Both deeds were recorded in Reg. of Deeds at Plymouth, Mar. 17, 1714–15 in Book 11, page 116, &c.

Possibly they may have lived a short time in Mendon, but on the second attempt to settle Quinsigamond, now named Worcester, in 1684–5 we find him and his family located in the vicinity of what is now called Quinsigamond Lake. They were, however, so troubled by the raids of the Indians that they became discouraged and removed to Bridgewater about May 1, 1693, for the town records show that at this date they were "warned out."

He lived for a short time in Taunton, North Purchase, (now Easton) possibly on land granted to his first wife, as one of the "three sisters," for under date of Oct. 22, 1691 (?) he conveys lands here to James Harris of Bridgewater, including one-third of the ten acres in Cranberry Meadows that had been confirmed to his brother John—as before mentioned—calling himself as then of that place.*

On making a personal inquiry of Judge Mitchell in Boston, Mar. 2, 1853, about some errors in regard to the families mentioned in his History of Bridgewater, he kindly gave me information of my ancestors, not in his history: showed me what errors he had already detected, and with his own hand wrote the following: "Since the publication of my Book I have satisfactory information of the following additional facts as to the family of Leonard.

"Jacob Leonard (5) had two other sons besides those mentioned in my book, viz.: Joseph and Josiah, one or both of whom may have been born of a former wife, as in his will he calls Susanna his present wife. This Joseph m. Martha Orcutt D. of W^m^ Orcutt of Scituate first, & then of Bridgewater, about 1695. She was born 1671. Joseph (17) was their son (born 1696) and not son of Joseph (11), as stated in my book, who m. Hannah Jennings 1712. They had also Ephraim who is mentioned under Solomon (7) who went to Hopewell N. Jersey, and a D. who m. a Fisher of Rehoboth. Probably Martha, mentioned as having m. Eben^r^ Eddy 1734, may have been their daughter also.

"Samuel (16) was son of Josiah above named, son of Jacob (5).— Jacob (5) there is reason to believe, removed from place to place, and did not come into Bridgewater till 1693, when he was warned out. (This warning out was a common practice in those days, to prevent a family, when first coming to a town, from gaining a habitancy and rendering the town liable to the maintenance of the posterity, and was done in all cases, however respectable or wealthy the new comer might be.)

"The principal authority I have for the above additions is derived from Simeon Leonard (26) who also says that Capt. Jacob, son of Capt. Solomon (19) told him that he was named for his great grand father (Jacob (5) of course): and says further that his own father Simeon (23) told him that Samuel (16) and Solomon (19) were first cousins to Joseph (17), so that Jacob (5) must have been father not only of Solomon (12) but also of Joseph and Josiah, not mentioned in my history. There is however great difference in the births of their respective grand children; Joseph's eldest grand child appears to have been born in 1722, Solomon's in 1757, and Josiah's in 1751. If his tradition therefore is true, Joseph must have been the eldest son and probably by a first wife, and Josiah may have been, also."

* During King William's War in the expedition sent against the Canadas in 1690, Capt. Hunt of Weymouth commanded a company of men from Weymouth and vicinity, in the list of whom appears the name of Jacob Leonard. The financial condition of Massachusetts obliged her to issue bills of credit in payment of the troops: in the case of this company these were not redeemed until 1736, when their heirs or legal representatives were granted a tract of land in Huntstown. Among the names of the original proprietors of Huntstown, now Ashfield, is that of Solomon Leonard, who probably held his father's share. Very few of the original proprietors ever settled in the town.

For a proper understanding of this, reference must be made to the History of Bridgewater, pages 235–237. It may be stated here, however, that Joseph and Josiah were both born nearly or quite twenty years before their brother Solomon. The first married when 26, the second when some older probably, and the last when he was 38.

The following from Plymouth Probate Records, Book 4, page 31; is a copy of his will:

"I Jacob Leonard of Bridgewater in the County of Plymouth in New England Husbandman being very sick & weak of body but of perfect mind & memory, thanks be to God for the same, calling unto mind the mortality of my body & knowing that it is appointed for all men living once to dye do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament: That is to say, principally and first of all, I give and recomend my soul into the hands of God that gave it, and for my body I recomend it to the Earth to be buried in Christian like and decent manner at the discretion of my executors—nothing doubting but at the General resurrection I shall receive the same again by the mighty power of God. And as touching such worldly Estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me with in this life I give devise & dispose of the same in the following manner & form.

"Impr—I give and bequeath unto my two Eldest daughters Abigail Washburne & Susanna Hill, a certain tract of land that I have now in the Township of Woster, being my whole right there more or less Item I give and bequeath equally to be divided between my two afores" daughters Abigail Washburn & Susanna Hill.

"Item I give and bequeath unto my three younger daughters, that is to say, Experience Leonard Mary Leonard & Sarah Leonard all my moveables to be by them possessed at their mothers decease and not before equally to be then divided amongst them—

"Item I give unto my two sons Solomon Leonard and Jacob Leonard and their assigns all my land in this Town of Bridgewater equally to be divided betwixt them and my son Solomon to have the first choice, provided that they do each of them Jointly together afford and provide an Comfortable and Suitable Maintainance for my present wife Susanna Leonard their mother during her natual life, and if failure be made thereof then my will is that my said wife shall have an Improvement of the thirds part of this Estate during her natural life.

"Item I Constitute and appoint my well beloved son Solomon Leonard Sole executor of this my last Will & Testament, and I do hereby utterly disallow & revoke & disanull all former Wills ratifying & confirming this as my last Will & Testament.

"In witness and Conformation hereof I have set to my hand and seal this fourteenth day of December in the Year of our Lord One Thousand Seven hundred and Sixteen.

Ephraim Leonard

"Dec. 19, 1717 Nathaniel Woodward & Ephraim Leonard made oath that they saw the above Jacob Leonard sign and seal & heard him declare the above written Instrument to be his last Will & Testament.

Nathaniel Thomas
Judge of Probate."

It appears that the signature to his will is by mark, probably on account of age and infirmity, for previously he wrote his name and in a very respectable hand for that period. It seems strange that no mention is made of his children by his former wife. His grandson Ephraim, son of his eldest son Joseph, was one of the witnesses. After his will was made, by deed dated May 9, 1717, recorded in Registry of Deeds in Cambridge, Book 21, page 295, he conveyed all his lands in Worcester to his nephew Moses Leonard then living in Marlborough, but who removed a few months afterwards to Worcester.

His widow was one of the original members of the Second Church in Bridgewater at its formation July 7, 1718. Her youngest two children, Sarah and Jacob, were baptized by the first pastor, Rev. Benjamin Allen, and probably they were members of the church also.

His children by first wife were:—

20. †Joseph,[3] b. —: d. Jan. 29, 1749: m. 1695 Martha Orcutt.
21. Josiah,[3] b. —: uncertain about him, see Judge Mitchell's statement.

By second wife, Susanna:—

22. Abigail,[3] b. in Weymouth, Nov. 11, 1680: m. Thomas Washburn—his second wife.* Judge Mitchell got his wives transposed. She was nearly twenty years younger than his first wife, Deliverance (Packard.) He nominated her, and his cousin John Washburn, executors of his will made March —, 1729–30, proved Dec. 4, 1732, and they were appointed.
23. †Susannah,[3] b. in Weymouth Dec. 24, 1683; d. Nov. 19, 1764: m. Mar. 22, 1714 Ebenezer Hill.

26. †Solomon,[3] b. in Bridgewater —, 1693; d. May 29, 1761; m. —, 1730 Elizabeth Perkins—perhaps second wife.
27. Sarah,[3] b. in Bridgewater June 11, 1699; m. Feb. 27, 1720–21, William Orcutt. They had Jacob Orcutt,[4] b. May 2, 1723.
28. Jacob,[3] b. in Bridgewater June 13, 1702; d. Dec. 6, 1722. His brother Solomon gave a bond for the settlement of his estate, dated Dec. 21, 1726, with Ezra Clapp and Benjamin White of Taunton sureties.

*John Washburn in Plymouth 1632—his wife Margaret aged 49 came in 1635 with ch. John 14 & Philip 11. 5.

Isaac Leonard,[2] (Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, b. about 1650, probably in Bridgewater. He was one of the 840 soldiers that were in "Narraganisett Fight"—King Philip's war—Dec. 19, 1675, to whom, sixty years afterwards (!) seven townships of land were granted by the State of Massachusetts. Fourteen of the number were from Bridgewater, and when their shares were drawn Oct. 17, 1733, only two were living. His share was drawn by his son Isaac. These grants were confirmed by the Legislature April 18, 1735. See Hist. and Gen'l Register Vol. 16, page 143–5.

I have never been able to ascertain where his grant of land was located.

He was probably m. to Deliverance ——, about the close of this war. Deeds of land in Bridgewater made to him by his brother Samuel in 1677 and 1678 are on record, and we have seen from the Proprietor's Records that he had a house there in 1679. He seems to have owned land in Mendon, and was taxed there in 1691, 1693, 1695 and 1696; and may have lived there a part of that period. He owned land also in Worcester, and Judge Mitchell in his history expresses the belief that when he deeded his homestead in Bridgewater, April 17, 1717, to his son Joseph he may have removed to Worcester. He conveyed land in that town to Nathaniel Jones by deed in which he calls himself "weaver," dated March 27, 1717. The wife Deliverance, signed it March 7, 1719–20, and two days afterwards Benjamin Leonard (doubtless his youngest son), appeared before the General Court of Sessions and certified that he saw him sign the deed. Probably he had died about this period. His wife was also one of the original members of the Second Church in Bridgewater.

Their children born in Bridgewater, were—

29. †Isaac,[3] b. —; d. —; m. —. Mrs. Mary (Bailey) Randall.

30. Hannah,[3] b. Mar. 15, 1680; d. Apr. 22, 1753; m. 1, 1697 David Newton* of Marlborough, b. —, 1672; d. April 24, 1702. Their children were Lydia Newton,[4] b. —, 1698 (?); d. —, 1731 (?); m. Aug. 12, 1719 Samuel Morse Jr., b. July 20, 1696; d. Dec. 27, 1755, son of Samuel & Grace (——) Morse; (had Hannah Morse,[5] b. May 20, 1720; m. Wm. Gilmer of Wincendon; Lydia Morse,[5] b. Jan.

Manley of Easton,) who d. Apr. 21, 1753. Their children were Ichabod Manley,[4] b. Dec. 26, 1709; d. Jan. 11, 1799 at Hardwick, Mass.; Hannah Manley,[4] b. June 10, 1711; d. Nov. 26, 1790; m. Oct. 9, 1729, Joseph Packard of Easton; Rebecca Manley,[4] b. May 29, 1714; d. Apr. 30, 1790; m. May 29, 1746 Daniel Manley (?); Elizabeth Manley,[4] b. Mar. 11, 1716; m. Feb. 13, 1736 James Richards of Weymouth; Mary Manley,[4] b. July 7, 1720; d. Dec. 25, 1739.

31. Deliverance,[3] b. —; m. Jan. 9, 1701 Samuel Washburn, Jr. of Bridgewater. She must have soon died for he married a second wife in 1703.

32. Joseph,[3] b. —; d. —. It has been found impossible to trace this Joseph. In the deed which has been mentioned, his father conveyed his homestead "in consideration of love good will & natural affection for my natural son Joseph—Reserving ye uses & Improvements, of s^{d} Houses & Land, unto myself During my natural Life." Under date of Dec. 13, 1720, Joseph deeded a part of this property to his brother Benjamin, in exchange for his homestead, and Benjamin conveyed it, by deed dated May 31, 1722, to "Eleazer Carver, Jr., Bloomer, of Bridgewater."

There were five Joseph Leonards living in Bridgewater about this period, and it has been impossible to identify each of them at all times.

33. †Benjamin,[3] b. —; d. —; m. 1, Aug. 15, 1715 Hannah Phillips; m. 2, June 13, 1734, Mary Cudworth.

Solomon Leonard,[2] (Solomon,[1]) the youngest son of Solomon[1] the emigrant, was born in Bridgewater after 1650. Judge Mitchell in his history stated that he could give no account of him. He evidently supposed the inventory of the estate recorded in the Register of Probate at Plymouth, Book 1, page 1, was that of Solomon senior. I presumed this to be the case myself, until I had occasion to examine the matter critically, when I found the evidence conclusive that it was that of the son. The land stated as his on the Proprietor's Records was released, or deeded to him, by his brother Samuel and wife Abigail (Wood) under date of April 18, 1682.—the deed acknowledged before his brother-in-law Will Bradford, Deputy Gov^r, May 4, 1685.

Rev. Benjamin Allen, the first pastor of the second church formed in Bridgewater, in his records stated that among those "added to the church between the time of his ordination in 1718 and dismission in 1731 was the wife of Solomon Leonard" and her name was starred (*) showing that she had died before the latter date. Mr. Joshua Eddy Crane, Jr., of Bridgewater, who has investigated this matter very carefully is of the opinion that this must be the widow of Solomon Leonard,[2] Mr. Allen calling females wives when they were widows. I have thought it possible that Capt. Solomon Leonard[3] (26), son of Jacob,[2] may have had a wife before Elizabeth Perkins, to whom he was married when he was 38, and that she may have been the church member named.

The following is a copy of the first inventory recorded on the Plymouth County Probate Records.

By this it appears that he died May 14, 1686. The date of his marriage, the family name of his wife, her birth, or death, have not been ascertained.

It is supposed that they had the following children—

MERCY LEONARD,[3] (Samuel,[2] Solomon,[1]) sister of preceding, b. in Bridgewater, m. Richard Adams of Preston, Conn., supposed to be son of William Adams, b. Oct. 22, 1678. They were probably living in Canterbury, Conn., when their eldest child was born, as her birth was recorded there. He bought 100 acres of land in Preston from John Partridge of Duxbury, Mass., by deed dated Nov. 26, 1706, which for "love, good will & affection," he gave his son Richard April 8, 1735.

They "renewed covenant" and were "admitted to the privilege of Baptism" in church of Preston 1708–9, and their oldest two children were baptized. In Sept., 1716, were admitted to full communion, and were constituent members of the North Church, when it was formed Nov. 30, 1720, and were generous contributors to its support as long as they lived. He died April 12, 1749, and his widow Dec. 24, 1749.

The children of Mercy and Richard Adams were—

43. Elizabeth Adams,[4] b. July 25, 1705.

44. Richard Adams,[4] b. June 3, 1708; m. Dec. 26, 1732 Susanna Preston of Windham, Conn. They had children b. in Preston:—Mary Adams,[5] b. July 22, 1734; William Adams,[5] b. Jan. 5, 1735–6; Samuel Adams,[5] b. Apr. 19, 1737; Ebenezer Adams,[5] bap. Apr. 2, 1740; Susanna Adams,[5] b. Apr. 26, 1741; Mercy Adams,[5] b. Jan. 30, 1742–3; Richard Adams,[5] b. Sept. 1, 1744; John Adams,[5] b. Aug. 30, 1746; James Adams,[5] b. Sept. 14, 1748.

The family removed to Sandisfield, Mass., about 1765, where the father died in 1787.

45. Abigail Adams,[4] b. Mar. 22, 1717–18; m. Jan. 24, 1737–8 (?) Ebenezer Park of Canterbury, Conn.

(It is believed there were other children between Richard[4] and Abigail,[4] but no births were recorded and no trace of them has been found.)

10.

ELIZABETH LEONARD,[3] (Samuel,[2] Solomon,[1]) youngest sister of preceding, b. —; m. July 10, 1703 Thomas Clark in Norwich, Conn. He is supposed to have lived on the east side of Shetucket River, on territory that afterwards became a part of Preston. He owned numerous and extensive tracts of land in that town and vicinity. They were represented to be members of one of the churches in Norwich, but all their children, excepting the oldest and youngest, were baptized in Preston.

The children of Elizabeth and Thomas Clark were—

46. Mary Clark,[4] b. Dec. 28, 1705.

47. Thomas Clark,[4] b. Mar. 17, 1709; m. Dec. 18, 1735 Sarah Woodward of Preston. Their children born in Norwich were — Thankful Clark,[5] b. Nov. 8, 1736; Elizabeth Clark,[5] b. Oct. 4, 1738; Sarah Clark,[5] b. Sept. —, 1740; Lydia Clark,[5] b. July —, 1742; Phinehas Clark,[5] b. May 4, 1745; Mary Clark,[5] b. Jan. 4, 1747–8. The mother died Aug. 4, 1748, and the father m. July 16, 1750 Lydia Rude and had five more children. He d. May 1, 1764.

48. Elizabeth Clark,[4] b. Mar. 1, 1711.

49. Joseph Clark,[4] b. Feb. 24, 1713–14.

50. Ruth Clark,[4] b. Sept. 4, 1722.

Samuel Leonard,[3] only son of Samuel,[2] eldest son of Solomon,[1] was born in Bridgewater about 1683, died in Preston, Conn., May 11, 1718.

While his father's family were living in Worcester, sometime in the autumn of 1695, he was kidnapped by hostile Indians, and for a year and a half his anxious and distressed friends could learn nothing of his fate. No detailed account of the circumstances attending his capture, or of his sufferings from hunger, cold, and exposure during the two entire winters he was in the hands of his savage captors has come down to us, but history has faithfully described the wonderful heroism exhibited by this youth—then but fourteen years of age—and by his associates in captivity, Mrs. Hannah Duston and Mrs. Mary Neff of Haverhill, in slaughtering their merciless captors and their almost miraculous restoration to intensely anxious relatives and friends. In this connection the name of this modest youth, written Samuel Leonardson in the annals, has become immortalized, while his personal identity has been in obscurity for nearly two centuries.

March 15, 1697, the Indians attacked the town of Haverhill, Mass., and after murdering twenty-seven of the inhabitants and burning nine dwellings, carried away thirteen captives. Among the latter were the two women before named, Hannah Duston and Mary Neff.

A history of this foray by the Indians, with the experience of these two captives, the daring and intrepid manner of their escape, etc., was published soon after it occurred by Cotton Mather in his Magnalia, printed in London, and has been repeated in other publications many times since.

Epitomized, it is as follows: Mrs. Duston was in bed, having been confined only a week before, with her eleventh child. The inhuman savages compelled her to rise instantly and dress herself, which was done so hurridly that she had on but one shoe when driven from the house which they set on fire. The infant in the arms of Mary Neff was seized and killed. The Indians, with all their captives, started in great haste for the wilderness at the north, traveling twelve miles that day. The weather was exceedingly cold, the snow not all disappeared, the mud deep, but they pushed on day after day until they reached the vicinity of the Contoocook river where it enters the Merrimac in New Hampshire. Here the captives were separated, Mrs. Duston and Mrs. Neff were taken by the Indian who claimed them as his property to his home on the island long known as Contoocook, but now Duston's Island. Here they found the boy Samuel, who had been taken captive as before stated. Of the Indians there were two men, three women and seven children.

The sufferings of the captive women may be imagined but not described. After a time they were informed that they would soon be taken to an Indian settlement in, or towards Canada, and on their entrance to the village would be required to "run the gauntlet." They immediately decided that they would rather suffer death than such indignity and at once devised a plan of escape from their savage conquerors.

The first step in their programme was the bold and desperate one of killing the whole family of Indians, and it was decided to attempt it on the night of March 30, 1697. It has been stated that the plan originated with Mrs. Duston and that "she persuaded the nurse and boy to join her." However that may have been, it is very plain that it required the combined valor and courage of the three, and young Samuel seems to have had quite as much to do in the accomplishment of the brave and daring act as either. He had been so long with the Indians that they considered him as one of their children, had no fear of his attempting to escape, and could not believe these frail women would think of such an undertaking when success at best appeared so desperate. It was needful that they should learn how to wield successfully the weapons of the savages to which they must resort and at a convenient opportunity Samuel inquired of one of them how they struck their victims when they would despatch them suddenly, and how they took off a scalp.

When the night fixed upon had arrived, they waited patiently until they had evidence that all the savages were in deep sleep: then, carefully possessing themselves of the tomahawks, with marvelous skill and dexterity they despatched ten of them. A favorite boy, whom they purposed to take with them, was spared, but he awakened and ran into the woods followed by a squaw upon whom they had inflicted seven fearful wounds, and whom they supposed had been killed. Mrs. Duston killed her master, and Samuel the Indian who had told him how to strike a fatal blow and how to take off a scalp. They collected the few provisions there were in the wigwam, took one gun, a tomahawk, and the scalps of the ten slain—as trophies of their bloody carnage—scuttled all the canoes but one, and in that embarked on a perilous voyage down the Merrimac, for Haverhill.

They were in constant fear of being pursued by those to whom the squaw would report their escape, or by strolling Indians for whom they kept a constant watch, well knowing the fearful fate awaiting them if recaptured. They each alternately rowed and steered their little bark, one watching at night while the other two slept. A kind Providence protected them, and after a wearisome journey they arrived at Haverhill and astonished their mourning friends who believed them to have been murdered by the savages. After resting a little, accompanied by Mr. Thomas Duston—the husband of Hannah—they started for Boston where they arrived on the twenty-first of April. A report of their achievement preceded them, and they found themselves famous and received many attentions. Judge Samuel Sewell makes report of them in his diary under date of April 29th and May 1st. A petition was presented to the General Assembly, signed by Thomas Durstun, praying for remuneration or recompense, stating, "That the wife of ye petitioner (with one Mary Neff) hath in her Late Captivity among the Barbarous Indians, been disposed & assisted by heaven to do an extraordinary action, in the just Slaughter of so many of the Barbarians. * * * * & it seems a matter of universall desire thro the whole Province that it should not pass unrecompensed" etc. No mention is made of Samuel, but Judge Sewell records her testimony to the noble part he had taken in the "extraordinary action." At this time he was probably visiting his uncles—Major William Bradford at Plymouth, and John, Jacob and Isaac Leonard at Bridgewater.

Major Bradford was son of Governor Bradford and Deputy Governor of Plymouth Colony for several years previous to its union with the Massachusetts Colony in 1692, and a member of the Council or "Assistants," from this time to 1697. He was present when the session commenced, May 26, and doubtless aided in procuring the passage, June 8, 1697, of the following vote: "That Thomas Durstan in behalf of his wife—shall be allowed and paid out of the public Treasury Twenty-five pounds; and Mary Neff the sum of Twelve pounds, Ten shillings, and the young man (named Samuel Lenerson) concerned in the same action the like sum of Twelve pounds, Ten shillings." A report of their daring "action" soon spread throughout the country. When Col. Nicholson, Governor of Maryland, heard of it he sent them a valuable present, and others followed his example.

Soon after this Samuel joined his father and sisters in the vicinity of Norwich, Conn. At that time it was a long and toilsome journey and to him a dangerous one. It is believed that his mother had died during his captivity, her death hastened by intense solicitude for her lost, only son. His safety from the vengeance of the Indians required that he should remain in obscurity and this may have influenced his father in making his home in the northerly part of Preston (what is now the town of Griswold, Conn.) He seems to have had no ambition for renown and his secret was kept so profoundly by himself and family as almost to have died with him.

Through the instrumentality of Robert B. Caverly, Esq., of Lowell, Mass., a fine monument has been erected on the spot where the ten Indians were slain, "in commemoration of a most daring act of heroism;" it was completed and dedicated June 17, 1874. On the westerly side it bears this inscription:

Heroum Gesta.

On the opposite side:

At the dedication of the monument a large assembly of people were present, and Mr. Caverly delivered an oration and poem. Soon after he published a book entitled "Heroism of Hannah Duston, together with the Indian Wars of New England," in which he gave an account of the erection of the monument, the events it was intended to celebrate, etc. It had many quotations from an epic poem entitled "Merrimack," which he had published several years before, descriptive of the same events; and brief biographies of Hannah Duston and Mary Neff. He had made vain efforts to trace the boy Samuel. This is his record:

"Of Samuel's parentage, of his birth, death, or burial we have obtained no account. The three extraordinary incidents of Samuel's life—involved in his capture at Worcester by the Indians, his agency in the slaughter of the savages in the Contoocook, and of his sedate, unostentatious presence in Boston, April 21, 1697, and then again on the 8th of June the then next following, there to receive from 'the Great and General Court' of Massachusetts a complimentary reward for the heroic manhood of his youth—are probably the first and last that earth will ever hear of that heroic, generous-hearted, gallant boy."

Perhaps it may not be improper for me here to state that at the time I first read an account of his capture at Worcester, and escape from Contoocook, I felt confident that he must be a son of Samuel, Jacob, or Isaac Leonard, all of whom, as has been seen, were early in the former place. For more than a generation I sedulously sought trace of him but wholly in vain. Finally I obtained a slight clue that led by devious windings to complete success.

The most diligent search has failed to discover the exact date of his marriage, the family name of his wife, the date and place of her birth, or death. I employed persons to examine and copy records, made several trips to Preston and Griswold and critically searched the records of town, precinct and churches, ransacked the burial places, in hope of finding some monument that would chronicle the date of death and age, or at least mark the place of sepulture of Samuel and his wife Lydia—but all in vain. They were probably married sometime during the year 1706.

Their children born in Preston, Ct., were—

51. Lydia,[4] b. Sept. 22, 1707.
52. †Ebenezer,[4] b. March 17, 1709–10; d. —; m. May 6, 1730 Esther Amos.
53. †Samuel,[4] b. May 18, 1712; d. April 24, 1760; m. Aug. 9, 1733 Lydia Stanton.
54. Jane,[4] b. Nov. 5, 1714; m. June 6, 1737 Daniel Williams.
52. †Nathan,[4] b. Aug. 22, 1717; d. —; m. Nov. 12, 1739 Abigail Herrick.

The record of "that beloved, godly minister," Rev. Salmon Treat, first pastor of the first church in Preston, shows that "Lydia, wife of Samuel Leonardson, Jr., renewed covenant," Nov. 7, 1708, and at the same date the eldest child, Lydia, was baptized. His record also shows that the children born subsequently were baptized in infancy.

The death of Samuel, as before stated, occurred May 11, 1718. At a Probate Court held at New London, July 8, 1718 his widow was appointed administratrix of his estate. At the same date she filed an inventory of his property, appraised by John and Joseph Freeman, amounting to £412 12s. 1d. Its details show that he must have been, for that period, a well-to-do farmer. Among the "Items" were four horses, twenty head of cattle, and thirteen swine. His library must have been very small as his "books" were appraised at seven shillings. No tomahawk or hatchet is mentioned but there were "fouer" axes and one "musquet."

By the record of Rev. Hezekiah Lord, first pastor of the North Church of Preston, Lydia's name was enrolled among the constituent members at its formation, Nov. 30, 1720, and he solemnized her marriage to Nicholas Williams, Dec. 5, 1720. Mr. Williams' former wife, Dorcas, was admitted to the first church "by letter from Wenham," Oct. 7, 1714, and they had a son, Nathan, baptized Apr. 15, 1716, and another, James, Oct. 30, 1720. At the Probate Court held at New London, Dec. 14, 1725 "Lydia Williams Administratrix on the Estate of Sam[l] Lenerson late of Preston Dec[d] appeared in this Court by her husband Nicholas Williams and having nothing to add to the inventory, nor nothing to charge ye s[d] Estate of ye s[d] Dec[d] moved for a Distribution. Whereupon this Court proceed to Distribute the s[d] Estate as follows, viz.: to the s[d] Lydia Williams Relict of ye s[d] Dec[d], one third part of ye Reall Estate being Eighty pound During her naturall Life and one third part of the Personall Estate being £54. 8. s. 8. d. to be at her Dispose for Ever, and to Ebenez[r] the Eldest son a Double Portion being £89.. 12..s. 5.d. and to each of the other four children namely Lydia, Samuel, Jane and Nathan a Single Portion being £44.. 16..s. 2½..d. and this Court appoint Thomas Rose Jun[r] Moses Belcher and John Cook of Preston to Divide ye s[d] Estate according to this Distribution, to be sworn to that service by the next Justice of the Peace, the charge thereof and of this Court to be p[d] by the s[d] Relict and her children in proportion to what they are to Receive, and if anything more hereafter appear to belong to the s[d] Estate it must be divided amongst the s[d] Relict and her children in ye same Proportion.

"Whereas it Certified to this Court under the hand of Mr. Justice Brown of preston that Ebenez[r] Lenerson, one of ye sons of Sam[ll] Lenerson late of Preston Dec[d] being of age to Choose his Gardian, made choice of his father in Law Nicholas William to be his Gardian w[h] choice this Court approves of, and do also appoint the s[d] Nicholas Williams to be Gardian to Samuel, Jane and Nathan, three other of the children of the afores[d] Samuel Lenerson Dec[d], he giving Bond as the Law Directs."

Nicholas Williams united with the North Church July 10, 1724, and, with his wife, was a regular contributor to the church funds until 1738. In 1739–40 "the wife of Capt. Williams" contributed. No record of the death of either has been found.

Moses Leonard,[3] (John,[2] Solomon,[1]) son of John[2] and Sarah Leonard of Bridgewater, b —; m. 1, —, 1705 Mercy Newton,* dau. of Moses and Joanna (Larkin) Newton of Marlborough, b. Feb. 16, 1685, d. —, 1715; m. 2, Aug. 8, 1716. Mrs. Hannah Witherbee, widow of Thomas Witherbee and dau. of Dea. John and Lydia Woods of Marlborough, b. Aug. 4, 1677; d. of his first marriage. His wife was a sister of David Newton who married his cousin Hannah Leonard,[3] and of Edward who married another cousin, Mary Leonard,[3] eldest sister of Samuel the hero of Contoocook Island. During most of the time he lived in Marlborough, his family were in constant anxiety on account of the attacks of the Indians. Hon. Charles Hudson in his history of this town gives a graphic account of what the inhabitants suffered from the savages. He says: "Although this war did not at any time seem to peril the existence of the town, like the Narragansett, or King Philip's war, yet from the commencement of the century to the peace of 1713 the inhabitants were kept in a constant state of anxiety and alarm. The stealthy incursions of the guileful foe, the secret ambush, the midnight assault, the murderer of the laborer in the field, or the mother and her infant in the cabin—the dread of the scalping knife and the fear of a hopeless captivity—evils more to be dreaded than open war—to such as those the inhabitants of Marlborough were constantly exposed during this lingering war."

For the safety of the inhabitants twenty-six garrisons were established in the different parts of the town. These were fortified houses to which people could resort in time of danger, each numbered and named, and every family assigned to the one nearest or most accessible to them. Moses Leonard, his neighbor Thomas Witherbee, and three other families, were connected with No. 25, which was the house of his brother-in-law, Jonathan Newton. We have no record of harm coming to him or his family but that he planted, at an early period, one of the orchards for which the town became famous. He was an industrious and thrifty farmer, and had just completed a comfortable and convenient house when his wife, Mercy, died at the birth of her daughter Mercy. As has been previously stated, he bought of his uncle, Jacob Leonard of Bridgewater, his land in Worcester in 1717 and about that time removed there, where he became one of the prominent men of the place. He was Ensign in the militia and selectman as early as 1725.

The records in the Registry of Deeds at Cambridge, and in Worcester after the new county was formed in 1731, show that he bought and sold a great many tracts of land during his long life.

After the act of incorporation of the town of Worcester was passed in 1722, he was one of the committee of five appointed to "procure a supply of the pulpit." At the second annual meeting, he was chosen moderator and elected one of the assessors. By deed dated July 15, 1729, for £850, he conveyed to

Ben. Townsend his farm of 180 acres west of Quinsigamog pond, including houses, barn, and pew in the meeting house, and soon afterward removed to Brookfield. In a deed dated July 26, 1733, for land bought of Benjamin Smith in Lambstown (afterwards Hardwick), he is called "Inholder," which would seem to show that for a time he kept a public house. In a few deeds of subsequent date he is called "Yeoman," in all others "Gentleman." In the spring of 1735, for £1300 he conveys 398 acres in Brookfield to Jonas Clark of Boston and for £1000 receives from him lands in Leicester including house, etc., on "Laws Hill," afterwards known as "Mount Pleasant." He at once removed to this place, but for some reason remained but a short time, selling a part or all of the property to Gershom Keyes of Boston. By deed dated Feb. 20, 1739-40, he calls himself of Rutland, and in consideration of £1000 from his son Jonas, sells him 10 acres there, "with houses, barns, orchard," &c. In all deeds made subsequent to this date he is represented as residing in some part of this town. Apr. 27, 1759 as "late of Rutland West Wing Precinct & now Dwelling in said Rutland District." "Rutland West Wing Precinct," was incorporated as the town of Oakham in 1762; and "Rutland District," previously known as "Rutland North West Quarter," was incorporated a town by name of Hutchinson, in 1774—changed to Barre in 1776. His wife Hannah d. Sept. 7, 1751 and the records of Rutland show that he "entered his intention of marriage with widow Hannah Beaman of Westborough March 3, 1757—Certificate given March 18, 1757." She was probably the dau. of Eleazer and Hannah Howe who m. Eleazer Beaman, Mar. or May 2, 1726, all of Marlborough. Why the marriage was not consummated is not known. In Nov. following he "entered his intention of Marriage with Widow Sarah Hall of Dudley—Certificate given Nov. 25, 1757," and they were soon married. Very little is known about her or her former husband, Thomas Hall. He left a will dated Oct. 24, 1756, which was proved Feb. 1, 1757, and she was appointed executrix. They seem to have had two sons, Samuel and Benajah Hall, and two married daughters, Abigail Dennis and Elizabeth Hinds. After her marriage with Moses Leonard her name was attached to his deeds of conveyance. The last one that we find recorded bears date Feb. 3, 1769: "Moses Lenard Senr of the District of Rutland, Gentleman, in consideration of £120, paid by my son Moses Lenard Jr of 2d District yeoman—the southerly ½ part of house lott No. 8—where I now dwell with a Dwelling house thereon bounded Easterly on land of said Moses Lenard Jr. Westerly on house lott No. 9—Southerly on part of a house lott in possession of Mr. Josiah Dana." This property adjoins the village of Barre. The last record that can be found of them is a discharge of a mortgage, on the margin of the record in Worcester, Feb. 5, 1770. The mortgage was from Noah Hall to Thomas Hall, both of Dudley, dated Nov. 5, 1756. Discharge by "Moses Lenard of Rutland District, Gentleman—and Sarah Lenard his wife, she being Executrix to the Estate of Mr. Thomas Hall late of Dudley and widow of the said Thomas Hall." At this time he must have been about 95 years of age.

The children of Moses and Mercy—born in Marlborough—were—

Josiah Leonard,[3] (John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of preceding, b. — in Bridgewater; m. 1, Nov. 2, 1699 Marjoram Washburn; m. 2, Nov. 21, (supposed) 1717, Abigail Washburn.* His will, from which much of our knowledge of his family is derived, was dated Feb. 6, 1743, and proved May 21, 1745. His son, Josiah Jr., was sole executor.

His children were—

61. †John,[4] b. —; d. —; m. Nov. 23, 1732 Naomi Curtis.
62. †Josiah,[4] b. —; d. Dec. 25, 1760; m. Jan. 24, 1739 Jemima Washburn.

*It is not known who was the father of Marjoram Washburn (his first wife). Abigail Washburn, his 2d wife, was dau. of John[3] and Rebeckah (Lapham) b. 1688; her grandparents were John[2] and Elizabeth (Mitchell); great grandfather John[1] of Duxbury, one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater.

63. †Ezekiel,[4] b. —: d. Oct. 3, 1757: m. May 29, 1732 Johannah Hudson.

68. Margine,[4] b. —: m. —, Pratt.

Joseph Leonard,[3] (John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of preceding, b. —: m. Nov. 19, 1712 Hannah, daughter of Richard Jennings* of Bridgewater, (who was one of fourteen soldiers from that town in the "Narragansett Fight," Dec 19, 1675, and with the exception of Daniel Hudson, the only one living to draw his share of land granted by the State Oct. 17, 1733.)

The births of all his children are recorded in Bridgewater, excepting the youngest who was born in Pomfret, Conn., where he seems to have removed about 1730. The family, probably did not remain long, and I have found it impossible to trace them.

His children were—

69. Joseph,[4] } b. March 17, 1713.
70. Hannah,[4] }
71. Moses,[4] b. March 22, 1714.

JOSEPH LEONARD,[3] (Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) son of Jacob[2] and his first wife, Phebe (?) b. about 1670; d. Jan. 29, 1749; m. —, 1695 Martha, dau. of William and Martha Orcutt* of Bridgewater: she b. 1671 in Scituate, d. Sept. 30, 1752.

The Registry of Deeds in Plymouth contain records of numerous conveyances of land in Bridgewater, among them parts of his "homestead or home-living"—to Rev. Benjamin Allen, April 19, 1717; to his son Ephraim, July 23, 1722; to Solomon Pratt, Dec. 15, 1730; to Jonathan Chandler, "bloomer," March 8, 1732; and the remainder to his son Joseph, Jr., March 9, 1735. This land included what is now a considerable part of the beautiful village of Bridgewater. Williams Latham, Esq., stated to the writer that "Joseph and his wife Martha lived at the old Crooker place, but died at the Jonathan Cushing place."

In 1855 Mr. Simeon Leonard,[6] (598) wrote me: "My great grandfather divided his property between his two sons—the line of division I well knew. Ephraim was to maintain the old folks but he failed in business, his property was all taken from him, and he became poor. He went with all his children (Huldah excepted) to New Jersey, leaving his father in indigent circumstances, and I have been told, his parents were dependent in their old age."

It is sad to know that no monument marks the resting place of my grandfather's grand-parents, and that we cannot tell even in what "God's acre" the preceding generations were buried. Thanks to Lieut. John Washburn, we know Joseph Leonard,[3] and his wife Martha (Orcutt) were buried in the Old Grave Yard of Bridgewater; doubtless in the vacant space very near the monuments of their son Joseph,[4] and his wife Mary (Packard), No's 210 and 211 on Mr. Latham's Plan. Lieut. John Washburn, born in 1711, was the sexton and dug the graves in this yard from 1739 to the time of his death in 1797, numbering 706 in these fifty-eight years. The largest number in any one year was 47, in 1756, showing a great mortality for the then small population of the town. Mr. Latham in his valuable book, "Epitaphs in Old Bridgewater," states that probably some other interments were made during this period, for as early as 1850 it was estimated that there had been from 1,500 to 2,000 interred in this cemetery and in 1882, when his plan was made, there were but 531 monuments.

Lieut. Washburn kept his account in a book, which he provided especially for the purpose, and this valuable ancient document is in the hands of Mrs. Williams Latham of Bridgewater, who preserves it with scrupulous care.

The children of Joseph and Martha were:

79. †Joseph,[4] b. —, 1696; d. Apr. 28, 1786; m. Sept. 14, 1721 Mary Packard.
80. †Ephraim,[4] b. —; d —; m. Sept. 16, 1720 Martha Perkins.

second wife, for, as has been previously stated, Rev. Benjamin Allen recorded on the church record the admission of the wife of Solomon Leonard and her death during the period of his ministry. About the time of Rev. Mr. Allen's settlement, by deed dated June 19, 1717, Josiah Edson, Esq., gave him 18½ acres of land, "being the north east corner of ye lands whereon I now dwell;" and by deed dated Oct. 10, 1717, David Perkins gave him 5 acres, "being part of a 10 acre lot lying near and in part adjoiing to ye lands of Eleazer Carver." The history of Bridgewater gives some account of the trouble that occurred between Mr. Allen and his people which caused his dismission in 1730. He bought lands of, and had financial operations with, several of the Leonards and they did not seem to have much confidence in him finally.

By the Precinct Records it appears that at a meeting held July 2, 1730, Solomon Leonard with William Orcutt, Nehemiah Washburn, John Benson, and Jonathan Cary were chosen "a committee to dismiss Mr. Allen, and to enform him of the vote of precinct," etc. It seems the minister was not inclined to be dismissed and when the doors of the meeting-house were closed against him, he adroitly gained access to the pulpit, and for several Sabbaths, preached to empty seats. Oct. 30, 1730, another committee was chosen, consisting of the three first-named persons with Jonathan Sprague, "to join with the Church committee in dismissing Benjamin Allen, provide support of the pulpit," etc. Dec. 10, 1730, a new committee (consisting of Dea. Carver, Dea. Alden, Nathaniel Willis, Lieut. Hudson, William Orcutt, Jonathan Sprague, Nehemiah Washburn, and Solomon Leonard) seems to have been appointed. At the same time a protest was made by 53 male members of the church and society, whose names are recorded, "against paying Mr. Allen as awarded by the arbitrators." The records state that a meeting was held at the house of John Washburn, Jan. 1, 1731, when it was voted to pay the charge of the arbitrators, amounting to £53, 13s., 3d. It is probable that Solomon Leonard took a prominent part in the controversy. The following is taken from State Papers, Vol. 10, page 6. It bears no date, but was probably made about Jan.—, 1731.

"Solomon Leonard Testifieth and saith That upon the Lords day being the Eighteenth day of October last, he saw Nehemiah Cushing of Pembroke Dept. Sheriff come up to the door of the meeting house in the south precinct in Bridgewater and strike against sd Door with his stick before the Doors were opened for the Congregation to go in and with his Stick also to make an attempt to open the windows, and after the Doors were opened ye sd Cushing Together with Mr. Allen went into the Meeting house and made a great Disturbance Saying that he would carry away all that were combined to Keep Mr. Allen out of the Pulpit Saying also that he would Read a warrant which he had from Justice Little of Pembroke, but the People desiring him to forbear. Mr. Stone begun the Exercise, and after the forenoon's Exercises was ended, after I was gone out of the Meeting house the sd Sheriff Required me in his Magisters name to appear before Justice Little the next day and when I came before him, the Justice adjourned the Court till the next friday after, and then Laid me under bonds to appear at Plymouth and so answer it, at the next Quarter Sessions and likewise bound me to my good behaviour to Mr. Allen, but never would tell me for what."

Mr. Allen was succeeded by Rev. John Shaw—grandfather of Chief Justice Lemuel Shaw—and was the cherished and beloved pastor of the church for nearly sixty years. In the Church Records kept by him, he states that Solomon Leonard and wife were admitted members of the church in 1736. As previously stated, in 1737 Solomon purchased of his cousin Enoch Leonard, a considerable part of his homestead.* He was buried in the old graveyard of Bridgewater. In Mr. Latham's "Book of Epitaphs" his gravestone is numbered 470, and he says "he and his son Capt. Solomon both lived fifteen rods east of W^m^ S. Alden's." It is believed that his widow d. July 3, 1784, and was buried beside him.

Their children were—

88. Experience,[4] b. Nov. 15, 1732; d. in infancy.
89. †Solomon,[4] b. March 27, 1733–4; d. Oct. 23, 1814; m. Oct. 5, 1756 Joanna, dau. Capt. Joseph and Deliverance (Orcutt) Washburn, b. Jan. 30, 1736.

* See foot-note to Jacob[2] (4) page 40; also the following from Mr. H. S. Ranney of Ashfield: "The original grant of land to those soldiers, their heirs and assigns, was about 24,000 acres held by them in common. The first division was of 50 acres to each of the 63 shares. In that division Solomon Leonard took lot No. 26; which is in N. E. part of the town of Ashfield and is (1892) occupied and owned as a farm by H. Z. Smith, who is a descendant in the 4th generation from the first Chileab Smith who came here (the third settler in Huntstown). The second division of lands was made in 1762—in 100 acre lots—and the same share drew lot No. 2 in the second division; which lot is in the north central part of the town, one mile from the village, and owned formerly by Seth Hall for a farm and now by his son A. G. Hall. I have no record which shows to whom Solomon Leonard conveyed his lands and rights here. I presume he never came here to reside."

"The county deeds were very few of them recorded in the early days and there is no reason to believe that Solomon ever took up his claim in person, but that he sold it."

Isaac Leonard,[3] (Isaac,[2] Solomon,[1]) oldest son of Isaac,[2] b. in Bridgewater before 1680; m. Apr. 16, 1701 Mary, dau. of *Ebenezer,[3] Thomas,[2] John[1] Whitman, one of the first settlers in Weymouth.

Guido Bailey,* who was then the widow of Samuel, son of Thomas, Randall who d. as early as 1697.

By records of deeds it is known that they were living in Taunton, North Purchase (Easton) in 1713. July 13, 1713 Nathaniel Manley (son of William) calls him brother-in-law. Mar. 9, 1719–20 he had deed of land on easterly end of North Purchase of Jeremiah Willis of Dorchester and Samuel Smith of North Purchase. In March, 1726, he and his wife Mary convey their homestead in Easton to Eliphalet Leonard (all of Easton) for £245. July 23, 1727, Isaac Leonard of Mendon, Mass., buys of John Adams of Pomfret, Conn., 132 acres of land in that town for £300. Sept. 9, 1727, "of Pomfret, Conn.," he sells to Thomas Randall land in Easton, and Jan. 4, 1729, "late of Easton, Mass., now of Pomfret, Conn.," he sells to Eliphalet Leonard ⅛ of an iron mine in Easton. Miss Larned in History of Windham County, Conn., states that Isaac Leonard, Senior, Junior, and David and Thomas lived in Pomfret in 1731, also that Joseph and wife and Isaac and wife (?) were members of the Second Church when formed in 1734.

He bought other lands here, but Feb. 9, 1735–6, for £800 he sold out to Isaac Parks and no further trace of him or his family can be found. As previously stated he was in Boston Oct. 17, 1733, and drew the share of land coming to his father as one of the soldiers in the Narragansett fight.

He had children—

93. Isaac.[4]
94. David.[4]
95. Thomas,[4] and others.

Benjamin Leonard.[3] (Isaac.[2] Solomon.[1]) brother of the preceding, b. —: m. Aug. 15, 1715 Hannah Phillips, daughter of

*Guido and Joseph Bailey are supposed to have been brothers. Mitchell says Guido was among the first settlers of Bridgewater, took oath of fidelity 1657; first lived in W. B. afterwards in S B.; in 1696 sold his place to his nephew Manasseh Marston of Salem: the selectmen consenting to it, to whom he from age and infirmity had previously applied for assistance; Marston to maintain him and his dau. Mary. He d. about 1700; wife's name was Ruth; had Guido, d. about 1690; Mary m. 1, a Randall, and m. 2, Isaac Leonard; she conveyed 20 acres of land to her cousin Marston, 1697, who was to take care of her and he conveyed it to Leonard in 1702; Ruth m. Ebenezer Hill 1684; Elizabeth m. James Harris 1693. [Mitchell's Bridgewater, p. 107.] Of Joseph Bailey we learn that he was in the Narragansett fight and that in 1735 "Ebenezer Hill for his uncle Joseph Bailey" and "Ebenezer Hill for his father Ebenezer" claimed to be the eldest male heir when appearing among the 840 who had seven townships allowed them. I think this is the Ebenezer who m. Susanna, dau. of Jacob Leonard[2] and that Mitchell was in error when he makes him "s. of Jonathan.[1]"

William and Hannah (Gilbert)* Phillips of Taunton. He was a member of the Second Church and had trouble with Rev. Benjamin Allen, as the following record shows:

"On the 21 March 1721 The Chh. met and ye Occasion of it was some reflecting words spoken by Benj. Lennard against the pastor When he made ye following Confession and was forgiven by ye Chh.

"I must needs Own y' I have not attended ye rule in being so rash as & unadvised in taking up and publishing a groundless report against my Pastor Mr. Benjamin Allen with respect to his wronging my uncle Samuel Lennard about Twenty five pounds I desire forgiveness from God & from Mr. Allen and from the whole Chh. hoping I shall be more Carefull of him of them & of my self for time to Come—Benjamin Lennard owned this before ye Chh.

Attest Benj. Allen Pastor."

By record of deeds Dec. 13, 1720, and May 31, 1722, he and his wife Hannah convey to Joseph Leonard and Eleazer Carver their homestead and other lands in Bridgewater, and at the latter date bought a part of the homestead of William Phillips (her father) deceased, to which they removed before July 1, 1723. This was in that part of Taunton that became Dighton in 1712 and Berkley in 1735. Deeds of purchases and sales of lands by them are on record up to 1723. It is evident his wife Hannah died about 1730 and he m. 2, June 13, 1734 Mary Cudworth, b. Nov. 14, 1702, dau. of James and Betty (Hatch) Cudworth. Under date of Mar. 16, 1737 Benjamin Leonard and wife Mary of Berkley for £620 sell to John Paul of B. "my homestead where I now dwell in Berkley." Nov. 2, 1738, Benjamin and wife Mary of Berkley sold a tract of land and meadow to Elkanah Babbit.

The children of Benjamin and Hannah were—

96. Jemima,[4] b. May 8, 1717.
97. Lydia,[4] b. Sept. 17, 1718.
98. Hannah,[4] b. Sept. 26, 1720.

NATHAN LEONARD,[4] (Samuel,[3] Samuel,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Preston, Conn., Aug. 22, 1717; m. Nov. 12, 1739 Abigail Herrick of Preston. They joined the North Church in Preston, July 26, 1741.

He was made Ensign when his brother was made Lieutenant, Oct., 1751. At a special session of the Assembly in March, 1756, he was made Lieutenant of the 8th Company, 1st Regiment of troops raised for the expedition to Crown Point. In May of the same year he was made Captain of the 2d Company or trainband of Preston. He represented the town in the Legislature at its May session in 1759. He removed to Worthington, Mass., before 1768. During that year a bill was passed by the Provincial Congress of the State "creating the new plantation called Number Three in the county of Hampshire into a town by the name of Worthington" and the following warrant was issued by Hon. Israel Williams who had been empowered to call a meeting of the inhabitants:

"These are therefore in his Majesty's name to require you, Nathan Leonard, to notify and warn the inhabitants of Worthington that they assemble together at the house of Alexander Miller innholder in said town on the first Monday of August next at 10 of the clock, in the forenoon then and there in public meeting to choose all such officers as towns within this Province are impowered and enabled by law to choose in the month of March annually. Hereof you Nathan may not fail. Given under my hand and seal at Hatfield in Hampshire county this eleventh day of July in the eighth year of his Majesty's reign, anno Domini 1769.

Israel Williams, Jus. Pacis."

At the town-meeting thus called Capt. Nathan Leonard was chosen Moderator and he was made one of the three selectmen of the town. He was chairman of the board of selectmen for three years; was one of the committee of correspondence (of which Capt. Ebenezer Leonard was chairman) chosen to communicate with the Committee of Safety at Boston in regard to the safety of the town. In 1775 he was chosen as Representative to the General Court. He was one of the first two deacons of the church chosen in 1771.

The children of Nathan and Abigail, all born in Preston, were—

Moses Leonard,[4] (Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) oldest son and child of Moses,[3] and Mercy (Newton) Leonard, b. in Marlborough, Nov. 1, 1706: m. 1. Harriet Beulah ——, probably about 1734. She b. —, 1716. His father deeded a farm to him in Brookfield, where the father and son were then living, Mar. 2, 1732. He had land also in Worcester and lived there a few years. The births of two of their children were recorded there: the remaining eight were born in Rutland, a part or all of them in "North West Quarter," or "Rutland District," now Barre. He was for many years selectman and town treasurer. He bought land here Oct. 21, 1738 and sold his land in Worcester to Oct. 6, 1738 calling himself "cordwainer, of W." He sold his farm, which included a part of the center village of Barre, to Francis Nurse (who afterwards sold some of it to enlarge the common) Mar. 18, 1778. He conveyed other lands that he owned at the same date, and removed to Warwick. This town was incorporated Feb. 17, 1763, but some of his children had settled in the town even earlier than this, and others followed or went with him. Before his removal (in 1777) he contributed toward the Church Fund and in 1782 gave a tract of land for a burying ground in Warwick.

EZRA LEONARD,[4] (Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, b. in Marlborough Sept. 19, 1711 ; m. June 1, 1737 Olive Smith, dau. of Benjamin Smith* an early settler of Hardwick.

He was living in Brookfield in Sept., 1735, and in Hardwick in October following. He was an active man in Hardwick.

*Benjamin Smith m. —. His first wife d. in Roxbury ; m. 2, Mar. 21, 1716-17 Experience, dau. of John Curtis ; m. 3, Apr. 23, 1724 Hannah Phillips. His children were Olive, Elizabeth, Benjamin, Samuel, Caleb, Hannah, Mary. Benjamin, the father, appears to have removed to Rutland before 1747 and to have resided there several years ; but according to a tradition related to me (Rev. Lucius R. Paige) nearly half a century ago, by a lady then about ninety years old, he returned and spent his last days in the family of his daughter, Olive Leonard, surviving to extreme old age. He was certainly living 16 May, 1769, when he executed an imperfect will now in possession of Mr. J. F. Morris of Hartford, one of his posterity."

holding offices of trust and responsibility. He held a commission as ensign from Governor Bernard, and served in Capt. Joseph Warner's company which marched to the relief of Fort William Henry in 1757. In 1794 he deeded his property to Jonathan Flynt, his son-in-law, on condition of support of himself and wife. In 1797 they all removed to South Wilbraham where his wife died Feb. 16, 1798, aged 85. He died June 29, 1798, aged 86 years and 10 months, and both are buried in the graveyard at South Wilbraham. Their epitaphs are as follows:

In Memory of
Mrs. Olive, Wife of
Ens. Ezra Leonard,
late of Hardwick,
who died
Febry 16th, 1798,
aged 85 years.

Farewell, vain world,
Thy joys deceive.
True pleasures lie
Beyond the grave.

In Memory of
ENS. EZRA LEONARD,
Late of Hardwick,
who died
June 29, 1798, in the 87th year of his age.

Ye living men see here your end:
To Jesus' voice pray now attend.
Your days, your years! how swift they fly!
Be warned! beware! prepare to die

Their children were—

143. Sarah,[5] b. Mar. 7, 1739; d. Sept. 15, 1746.
144. Benjamin,[5] b. Aug. 15, 1741; d. Sept. 7, 1746.

MERCY LEONARD,[4] (Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) the only daughter of Moses and Mercy (Newton) Leonard, b. in Marlborough Dec. 1, 1714; m. May 29, 1732 Samuel Robinson, son of Samuel and Sarah (Manning) Robinson, b. in Cambridge Apr. 4, 1707, d. in London, England, Oct. 27, 1767. She d. in Bennington, Vt., June 5, 1795. If a full history of her remarkable life could be written it would prove of intense interest. Rev. Lucius R. Paige, author of the History of Hardwick, wrote of her: "She was mother of the illustrious Robinson family in Bennington, Vt.—a remarkably intelligent and energetic woman," etc. Had she been born a century and a half later, and enjoyed the advantages her sex are having now, she would doubtless be one of the notable women of the country. She began life under very unfavorable auspices. Her mother, dying when she was an infant, committed her to the care of her father, Moses Newton, who has already been mentioned as the hero who gallantly and successfully defended and rescued an aged and infirm woman when the Indians attacked Marlborough in 1676. It was on Sunday and the people were in the church. On the alarm being given the congregation fled to the shelter of their garrison, leaving this woman to certain destruction by the savages but for the noble heroism of this man. He saved the woman and escaped with his own life, but received a ball in his elbow which partially deprived him of the use of his arm ever after. In his will made April 3, 1724, (recorded in Reg. of Probate, Worcester, book 1, page 196), he makes an especial bequest in the following language: "My Granddaughter Mercy Leonard who my daughter Mercy Leonard at her decease committed unto me and my wife and after our decease to my son Jacob. My will is that in case my s[d] granddaughter shall continue with my two sons Jacob and Ebenezer (who now dwell together) or either of them until she be married or have attained the age of 18," etc. It seems she was married six months before she became 18. Her grandfather died May 23, 1736, aged 90.

When married they were both living in Southborough, but it is believed removed to Grafton where her husband bought a tract of land. Their first child was born here. In the spring of 1736 they removed to Hardwick, where their ten following children were born. For an exceedingly interesting account of Mr. Robinson's prominence, activity, and energy in this place for twenty-five years, and in Bennington, where they removed in 1761, the reader is referred to the History of Hardwick by Hon. Lucius R. Paige, page 467. In subsequent pages a detailed history of children and grandchildren may be found.

The children of Mercy and Samuel Robinson were--

153. Elizabeth Robinson,[5] b. Dec. 24, 1733; d. young.

154. Leonard Robinson,[5] b. July 10, 1736; had 3 wives and 16 children; was a soldier in the French War, and in the Battle of Bennington; d. Sept. 29, 1827.

155. Samuel Robinson,[5] b. Aug. 9, 1738; had 9 children; was Adjutant in the French War, and Captain in Bennington Battle, afterwards Colonel and Justice of Peace.

156. Moses Robinson,[5] b. Mar. 15, 1741; a lawyer, Chief Justice of Sup. Court, Governor of Vermont, Senator in Congress; also Colonel of Militia and member of the Council of Safety.

157. Paul Robinson,[5] b. Dec. 17, 1743; d. —, 1754.

158. Silas Robinson,[5] b. Mar. 17, 1745–6; not so distinguished as his brothers but engaged in the Bennington Battle and so active in the early controversy with New York as to be imprisoned in Albany.

159. Mercy Robinson,[5] b. Oct. 8, 1748; m. Col. Joseph Safford.

160. Sarah Robinson,[5] b. Nov. 13, 1751; m. 1, Benjamin Fay, m. 2, Gen. Heman Swift.

161. David Robinson,[5] b. Nov. 4, 1754; fought in Bennington Battle, was afterwards Major-General, Sheriff of Bennington County twenty-two years to 1811; then U. S. Marshal for eight years to 1819. He d. Dec. 11, 1843.

162. Jonathan Robinson,[5] b. Aug. 24, 1756; a lawyer, representative, Judge of Probate, Chief Justice of Sup. Court, and Senator in Congress.

163. Anna Robinson,[5] b. Oct. 4, 1759; m. Isaac Webster.

59.

Jonas Leonard,[4] (Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) half-brother of the preceding and son of Moses and Hannah (Woods) Leonard, was b. in Worcester, Oct. 19, 1719 "the seventh day of the week." Feb. 20, 1739–40 his father deeded him 101 acres of land with dwelling house, etc., thereon, in Rutland, calling him "cordwainer." He reconveyed it Jan. 3, 1743, calling himself "husbandman," both still living in Rutland. Later he removed to Boston where he kept the "Lamb Tavern" said to be the present Adams House. He m. 1. Feb. 21, 1745 Mrs. Eunice (——) Barber* widow of Hezekiah Barber. She d. —, 1749 and he m. 2. — Abigail ——.

In Worcester Registry of Deeds, book 26, page 536, is the record of a deed from Timothy Green, printer, and Jonas Leonard, innholder, of Boston, guardians of Eunice, Elizabeth and James Barber, minors, and children of Hezekiah Barber late of Boston, blacksmith, to John Moffatt of said Boston, printer, of land in Stoughton and Dorchester, Mar. 31, 1750.

He d. Oct. 13, 1757 and Nov. 18 of the same year, Abigail Leonard, widow, filed a bond and made application for appointment as administratrix to settle the estate of her deceased husband, Jonas Leonard, innholder.

It is not known whether he had any children.

ANDREW LEONARD,[4] (Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, b. in Worcester, Nov. 20, 1719; m. 1. Mar. 7, 1744–5 Dorothy Stevens who d. about 1757 and he m. 2. June 13, 1758 Hannah Pierce of Rutland (dau. of Samuel Pierce who d. at Zoar, Nov. 4, 1775). We have the record of the births of sixteen children all born within the limits of the original town of Rutland, a majority of them in "Rutland West Wing" which in 1762 was incorporared as the town of Oakham. His father, Moses Leonard, Senior, deeded him a tract of land in the south part of Rutland, Feb. 9, 1745, on which he settled at the time of his first marriage. May 18, 1749, for £1300, his brother Moses sold him a farm probably adjoining, and at the same date he mortgaged it to Stephen Gates of Rutland. Sept. 9, 1760, his father deeded him one-half of the farm of 250 acres on which he had been living in "West Wing,"—he "now living in Rutland District"—and "5¾ acres more in West Wing." He probably returned there soon after.

The exact date of his death has not been ascertained: it was "about 1805." Capt. Tomlinson, a son of Rev. Daniel Tomlinson the first pastor of the Congregational Church organized here, stated in 1883, (he then being 90) that "he remembers well old Mr. Andrew Leonard and wife"; that "he then lived in the east part of the town, built a house by the side of a ledge of rocks: short logs were used for seats."

Ephraim Leonard,[4] (Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, b. it is supposed in Bridgewater before 1700: m. Sept. 16, 1720 Martha Perkins, dau. of Humphrey and Martha (Moulton) Perkins of Hampton, N. H.

He was a merchant, or, as called in the deeds of conveyance of that period, "Dealer," in Bridgewater. Mr. Latham, in 1883, informed me that his store was about where the post-office was then located, on Central Street. For many years he was evidently one of the active business men of the place. The records of deeds show that he was a large buyer and seller of real estate in and around the center village of the town. He probably wrote very many of the deeds of that period as his name is attached to vast numbers as one of the witnesses. He and his wife were members of the church and several of their children were baptized.

As has been before stated, he became embarrassed, failed in business, lost his property, and with his family, except one or two of his daughters, removed to Hopewell, N. J., probably about 1740.

Among the last deeds that he made was one signed by himself and wife Martha to Josiah Edson, Jr., Gentleman, consideration £700, of 18 acres "in South Precinct being the farm on which we now dwell;" dated July 14, 1738, acknowledged Sept. 18, 1740. Under date of April 25, 1752, Martha Leonard, widow of Joseph (his mother) released her claim for dower in this land.

For £697 he and wife deeded to "Solomon Perkins, Joyner, a part of the farm I bought of Capt. Nehemiah Washburn in the north westerly part of Bridgewater on which Solomon Perkins now dwells containing by estimation 49 acres 59 rods." June 17, 1740, acknowledged Sept. 24, 1740.

With his brother Joseph he was witness to a deed from Joseph Pool to Dan Leonard for 55 acres in south part of Bridgewater, consideration £700, Nov. 26, 1748. He was probably here at that time on a visit.

The children of Ephraim and Martha were—

236. ——,[5] b. March 8, 1722.

He took great interest in the Harrison and Tyler campaign, casting his vote for Harrison a few days before completing his one hundredth year. He was for many years a member of the Presbyterian church and was able to attend church until a few weeks before his death. His widow died in Abington, Conn., Nov. 2, 1855, at the advanced age of 92 years and 9 months. From an obituary notice of Mrs. Leonard we take the following:—"The longevity of the Ripley family, of which the deceased Mrs. Leonard was a member, has been remarkable. She was one of nineteen children, eight sons and eleven daughters by the same mother. Of these nineteen children ten lived to be over seventy years of age; five over eighty years, and three over ninety years. The only surviving member of the family is Lincoln Ripley,* a Congregationalist minister, living at Waterford, Me., in his ninety-fifth year. Of the other brothers, Nehemiah and Ezra Ripley were ministers of the Gospel. Dr. Ezra Ripley was pastor of the church in Concord, Mass., for more than half a century and died in his ninety-first year. The deceased Mrs. Leonard kept her physical and mental powers in vigorous and healthy action till near the close of her life. Her vigor of mind and body was maintained by reading and by performing some useful labor every day."

to Shaftsbury, and subsequently to Orwell, Vt., where his death occurred Aug. 28, 1831. His wife d. Feb. 11, 1825.

From Hon. Roswell Bottum's History of Orwell we take the following: "Mr. David Leonard came into the town in the year 1784. He was an enterprising and energetic man, and immediately set about erecting a grist and saw mill. These were the first mills erected in town, and were of great benefit to the early settlers. In the month of March, 1789, the grist mill of Mr. Leonard was burned with 200 bushels of wheat deposited therein, which circumstance tended greatly to enhance the scarcity of that year. This quantity of wheat, could it have been preserved and distributed among the suffering inhabitants, would have been a great alleviation to their distress. Mr. Leonard lost no time in rebuilding his mill, and the people, having an interest in its construction, did much to aid him in accomplishing the work, so that early in the season of the same year the mill was again in operation." When the town was organized in 1787 he was appointed Town Clerk, which office he filled several years. The records show numerous transfers of real estate to or by him.

Oct. 8, 1758, in Hartford, Conn., dau. of John and Abi (——) Sweatland.* She with others escaped to Tioga Point, N. Y., from the massacre of Wyoming in July, 1778. She was the widow of Jared Green of Wilbraham, Mass., a captain in the Revolutionary Army, who d. without children two years after their marriage. At the time of her marriage to Amos Leonard she is recorded as "of Granby."

He was in the patriot army during the war of the Revolution serving nearly seven years under three separate enlistments as the state records show; he gives his occupation as that of a farmer. From the U. S. Pension Office records we learn that "at the commencement of the Revolutionary War he was residing in Brookfield, Worcester Co., Mass., where he enlisted to serve 8 months at Roxbury and vicinity during the siege of Boston and was discharged in Dec., 1775; he was in Col. Whitcomb's Reg't. In Feb., 1777, he enlisted for three years under Capt. Spurr in the Mass. Regiment, commanded by Col. Thos. Nixon and was discharged in March, 1780. After this service he remained at home about a year, then enlisted under Capt. Bannister in the regiment commanded by Col. Shepherd to serve to the end of the war." No battles or other incidents connected with his services are mentioned.

His daughter says he "was a farmer, held no public office, his politics I cannot tell, attended the Presbyterian church, was not a very tall man." A granddaughter writes, "he died when I was ten or eleven years old but I have some recollection of him; he used to stand up and ask the blessing at the table: he was not a very large man, rather light complexioned,

April 10, 1767, only child of Noah Kent of Rehoboth (now East Providence, R. I.) He was an eye witness of the battle of Bunker Hill. In 1776 he enlisted in Col. John Bailey's Reg't, Capt. Orr's company. He was in sundry expeditions with Gen. Sullivan and La Fayette, in 1778 in Rhode Island and in 1780 was on the frontier when the Indians burnt Royalton, Vt. He was furloughed and in active service to the close of the war in 1783. When off duty he studied medicine with Dr. Gad Hitchcock, a surgeon in the Revolutionary army. After the close of the war he studied with Dr. Edward Winslow of Swansea, Mass. In 1784 he went to Warwick, R. I., to practice and from thence to Providence where he was for a time engaged in the drug business, afterwards returning to Bridgewater where he devoted himself to his profession. He lived subsequently in Westmoreland, N. H., and in Barnard, Vt. He eventually gave up the practice of medicine saying it was "a humbug on the people." While living in Vermont his father-in-law sent for him to come to Rehoboth, take his property, and take care of himself and wife. "He was a trader in farms and bought farms in various places."

Hall of Taunton, b. Aug. 21, 1750. She was the granddaughter of Elizabeth, dau. of James Leonard of Taunton, and by this marriage branches of the "Bridgewater" and "Taunton Leonards" were re-connected. David was a soldier during the French war and was with Gen. John Winslow's regiment in 1755 in the expedition for the expulsion of the Acadians from Nova Scotia,* and was present at the capture of Ticonderoga in 1759; he was afterwards a master mariner and later a farmer. A part of the farm on which he lived and died in Bridgewater, near Nipinickit Pond, is still owned by his descendants. He was a man of great energy of character and lived a very exemplary life. He d. Nov. 24, 1813.

The following appreciative sketch of his wife, who d. Dec. 4, 1839, has been prepared by a granddaughter, Mrs. C. L. Ward:

"Mary Hall was born Aug. 21, 1750, in the town (now city) of Taunton, Bristol Co., Mass. She was a woman of strongly marked character, and with a rare physical constitution, of great energy of purpose and decision of will, her 'strong mind in a strong body' enabled her to accomplish an unusual amount of labor, and to fill up her long and active life with usefulness. Born in the country, with the meagre advantages for education and culture which that age afforded to the sparsely settled population, without wealth, her early privileges must have been few. Married (to David Leonard, May 24, 1770), before she was twenty years of age, she assumed the cares of a farmer's wife, which at that time involved the spinning and weaving the cloth, as well as making the garments for her household, and the making of butter and cheese with her own hand. By her great industry, good judgment, and economy, their home was prospered, and she reared thirteen children, all but one of whom lived to adult age; eleven of them had families of their own, two of them were ministers of the gospel (Rev. David A. Leonard and Rev. Zenas L. Leonard), and all of them filled stations of influence and trust. She was a woman of strong religious convictions, devout, who knew whereof she believed, and of unswerving adherence to what she felt to be 'duty.' As an illustration of her conscientious-

*Mr. Philip H. Smith of Pawling, N. Y., says of this expedition:—"May 20, 1755, two battalions of troops sailed from this port of Boston under immediate command of Lieutenant Colonel John Winslow. The soldiers were drawn from this colony and when they enlisted were told, without understanding very definitely what it meant, that they were to be used to drive the French from their encroachments in Nova Scotia. While in Nova Scotia the New England soldiers were badly treated by the regular British troops and Winslow himself suffered indignities from the British officers. He said of the part he played in the deportation that it was 'very disagreeable business.'" [Address before the Historic Genealogical Society, June 2, 1886.]

ness and love for the Lord's House, she would often, after performing the morning labors for her large family, walk four miles to church, (the nearest of an evangelical order), and after morning and afternoon service walk back and resume the cares of her household. She was never ashamed to speak of her Saviour, or to administer rebuke or a word of reproof if she felt the cause of truth demanded it. She was a woman of prayer and lived a life of faith from day to day, and her habitual walk and conversation was such as to show to the world the power of a life 'hid with Christ in God.' She had much of the Puritan spirit and habit of mind, and I am sure, had her lot been cast among them, would have been of those who left all for conscience sake and fled to found a free church in a free land. Her stern sense of duty constrained her actions in all the varied relations of life.

"She was as strong in her friendships as in her religious convictions, and in the evening of life, when her active labors were over, she and two of her near neighbors, widows of nearly the same age and always ardent friends, were in the habit of exchanging weekly visits at each other's houses: starting soon after dinner with their knitting, that they might enjoy a long afternoon before the five o'clock tea, and returning home before sundown. I remember the weekly visits of these aged Christians as one of the sweetest and most lovely examples of true and devoted friendship I have ever known, lasting until one after another passed away. In the later years of her life her home was the resort of many ministers of the denomination to which she gave her adherence, and she was ever ready to help to the extent of her ability the cause of Christ by her means and by her prayers. Those who were associated with her in daily life were always impressed by her spirituality and her abiding sense of the reality of unseen things, the shortness of life, and the nearness of eternity.

"My recollections of her are only those of childhood and youth, as she had nearly reached her three-score and ten years when I first remember her, but from that time till her death my impressions of my revered grandmother are of a most earnest, consecrated spirit ever showing itself in doing good to all around her. In her old age she was looking day by day for the coming of the Master, retaining her faculties unclouded to nearly ninety years: she was cheerful and ready when the summons came suddenly, and she had only to pass from the earthly to the better home. Her often expressed wish that she 'might not outlive her usefulness' was granted. The last day of life was spent in her accustomed way, reading the Bible and Rippon's Hymns (which were always together on her table), the Baptist magazine and religious papers of the day, knitting in the intervals between, and after eating supper with the household and winding the tall clock, which had been her custom for so many years, she lay down to her rest, saying, as she had often done before, 'I am one day nearer an endless eternity.' At midnight she was stricken with paralysis and unconsciousness, and at early dawn, Dec. 4, 1839, entered into 'eternal rest.' It could be truly said of her, 'her children (and grandchildren) arise up and call her blessed.'"

ASA LEONARD,[6] (John,[5] Samuel,[4] Samuel,[3] Samuel,[2] Solomon.[1]) eldest son of John and Sarah (Pierce) Leonard, was b. in Worthington, Mass., Apr. 22, 1771, (Apr. 26, 1771?); m. about 1797 Esther Brown, b. —, 1781.

"In 1811 Asa came to Ohio to look for land and found it in Pierpont near some of his neighbors from Massachusetts. The deed to his land was given in Hartford, Conn., on Apr. 4, 1812, by Andrew Kingsbury, and recorded Mar. 14, 1814 in Ashtabula Co. Record. This land was in two tracts, one of 93 154-160 acres in lot eleven, and the other 266 acres 6 rods in lot five. For these parcels he paid the sum of $900, about $2.50 per acre. The family did not come immediately to Ohio, but lived in Sangerfield, N. Y., till the close of the war. They came through Buffalo two weeks after it was burned, on the 31st of Dec., 1813—and between this time and the recording of the deed, on Mar. 14, 1814, the journey was made. They lived in a log house called the hotel until their own house was built. Asa lived only two years after his arrival in Ohio. It is not difficult to imagine the bereaved woman and her children gathering around that grave in the wilderness in the depth of winter. She was one of seven to form the first Presbyterian church of Pierpont. Her children grew up around her and took responsible places in life before she passed away, and all survived her: Erastus, the oldest, was the first to die at the age of fifty. The others, excepting Franklin, lived to be more than seventy, and three more than eighty. They were all born in Worthington except Milton, and, with but one exception, all died near the old home." GEORGE LEONARD,[6] (Noah,[5] Moses,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Keene, N. H., Aug. 6, 1796; m. Sept. 20, 1819 Mary Russell, b. Oct. 25, 1798, dau. of Samuel and Mary (Lovejoy) Russell of Keene.

When only a lad he went to Boston and spent several years learning the trade of painter of his brother Joseph, giving much effort to doing ornamental work with care and skill. Soon after his marriage he settled in Glover, Vermont, going there when the majority of houses in the village were built of logs. It is related that Mr. Leonard, two or three years after coming to Glover, purchased land with the expectation of building a house for his family, hoping to get it finished before cold weather: that the neighbors knowing of his wish organized a building "bee" on the Fourth of July, and from trees that were standing in the morning had hewn timbers and raised a house ready to cover by the same evening. In this house all the children except the oldest were born, and a happy home life enjoyed until his improved circumstances furnished means to build a more commodious dwelling, which at the time of its construction was a source of interest to the townspeople—being in many respects the most pretentious one of the place: this has been held by the family until within a very few years.

Mr. Leonard d. in Glover July 28, 1870; his wife having died in the same place May 29, 1867.

Willard Leonard,[6] (Noah,[5] Moses,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) youngest child of Noah and Bethiah (Wetherell) Leonard, was b. in Keene, N. H., Oct. 29, 1799; m. April 23, 1826 Amy Larey, b. Sept. 9, 1804, at Wolfeboro', N. H.

*Died in Glover Nov. 1, 1889, aged 99 yrs. 11 mos. 27 days.

In 1819 with his father he removed to Glover, Vt., where he purchased a saw and grist mill, which shortly after was exchanged for a tract of land in Glover. He was a very athletic young man and a great walker, occasionally walking from Glover to Keene, a distance of 150 miles, in three days. It is related of him that while carrying on the grist mill he had occasion to pay a bill in Barton, three miles distant, and not wishing to be absent long from the mill, tried to see how quickly he could make the distance on foot; on his return he found he had been gone from the mill just thirty minutes, having traversed the six miles and paid his bill during that time. He represented his town in the State Legislature in the years 1838, 1840 and 1850. He was an honest man, of considerable business capacity, and was often called upon to serve as administrator in settling estates, having administered upon some of the largest estates of the town in his day. In religious belief he ranged himself on the side of the Universalists; in politics with the Republicans. He and his wife were known to all the children of the village as "Uncle Willard" and "Aunt Amy."

He was at one time engaged in mercantile business in Middlebury, Vt., which he afterwards continued in Orwell. He also built a flouring mill, one for carding wool and dressing cloth, and two for the manufacture of lumber, which he operated in conjunction with a farm of some three hundred and fifty acres. Later he built on Lake Champlain, three miles distant from his residence, a large wharf, store, storehouses, hotel, &c. This port afforded an outlet for the marble, manganese and manufactures of the inland towns and an inlet for the goods which those towns required. Disposing of his home, farm and mills, he purchased some four hundred acres at the lake and, renting the storing and forwarding business, devoted the remainder of his days to purely agricultural pursuits.

He was averse to public life, although he filled at various times nearly all the offices of the town. He was a man of sterling integrity, hospitable, social and convivial to that degree which never overstepped proper limits. An ardent sportsman, no music was so sweet to his ear as the cry of the hounds, of which he had at one time twenty-six.

Amos Leonard,[6] (Amos,[5] Andrew,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon.[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Paris, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1796; m. —, 1824 Susan Terrell, b. in Waterville, Conn., June 13, 1803, dau. of Elias and Hannah (Warner) Terrell.

He was a private soldier in the war of 1812 doing duty at Sackett's Harbor on Lake Ontario. He resided for a time in Pitcher, Chenango Co., N. Y., removed in 1834 to Eaton, Lorain Co., O., thence in 1838 to Huron Co., O., then to Byron, Kent Co., Mich., in 1846 and to Allegan Co., Mich., in 1854.

Although he had not the advantages of an early education he was a well read man, had a remarkable memory and kept well informed on the topics of the day. He was very entertaining in conversation and had unique ways of expression—many of his sayings being long remembered and often quoted.

He had a fund of dry humor and in repartee was often very droll. He was a good financier and solid business man, commanding the respect and esteem of all who knew him. A member of the Baptist Church he was scrupulous in his religious observances and required a like strictness from his family.

He d. Dec. 16, 1870 and is buried at Taylor, N. Y.; his wife d. in 1859 in Illinois; she was a woman of uncommon ability, strong of mind, kind of heart and very ingenious.

JARED LEONARD,[6] (Amos,[5] Andrew,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Paris, N. Y., Sept. 22, 1798; m. Aug. 11, 1825 Nancy Wheeler b. in Connecticut, Jan. 4, 1807; dau. of John and Sarah (Johnson) Wheeler.

During his youth, he helped clear the country of forests; after the trees were felled, the logs were often burned and salts made from the ashes, and while boiling the salts he educated himself, studying by the firelight at night. He was noted for his accurate memory and, considering his advantages, gained what may be accounted a good education. He taught school before his marriage and was regarded as a good teacher.

At the beginning of the war for the Union, he resided in Ashtabula County, Ohio, and four of his sons enlisted, the fifth being prevented from following their example on account of being a cripple. In the spring of 1867, he removed to Michigan and engaged in farming. All of his children, with but one exception, became landholders. He was strict in following his convictions of what was right, temperate, systematic, an obliging neighbor, "not only was he loved and respected by his family, but wherever he was known he was distinguished for his honesty, integrity and love of justice."

He d. in Tuscola Co., Mich., Oct. 6, 1870; his widow d. Aug. 9, 1891, in Denmark, Mich.; both are buried at Watrousville, Mich.

Ezra Leonard,[6] (Jesse,[5] Andrew,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Charlemont, Mass., Aug. 20, 1797; m. 1, Feb. 8, 1823 Ruth Hayes, dau. of David and Rachel (Dean) Hayes of Hartford, Conn., who d. in Greenfield, Ohio, Dec., 1834; he m. 2, Apr. 12, 1836, Mrs. Sophronia (Frost) Webb, widow of Harvey Webb, of Greenfield, Ohio, and dau. of Dea. Nehemiah and Elizabeth (Nash) Frost.

In 1817 or 1818, with his brothers Levi and Judah, he left Charlemont for the west, traveling most of the way on foot. During the journey Judah, then a boy of eighteen, overtaxed his strength, took a severe cold which terminated in typhoid fever and he d. at Port Byron, N. Y., Jan. 22, 1818. Ezra resided a few years in Canfield, O., afterwards in Royalton, later in Greenfield, then in Ridgefield, and in 1864, removed to Oxford, Ohio, where he d. Feb. 23, 1873; his widow d. Jan. 10, 1875 in Oxford.

He was ordained a Baptist minister and after preaching for a time, with many others, withdrew from that connection and formed a new branch of the denomination, calling themselves Disciples (Campbellites) and later Christians.

The following sketch of his character is furnished by a stepson: "He was ambitious, energetic, zealous, combative, highly benevolent, would commiserate real suffering and destitution and make any sacrifice to assist even against his pecuniary interest; was highly gifted in language. His moral and physical courage were of the first order. He seemed to revenge by inflicting injuries upon person or property, but it was extremely uncomfortable to be his enemy. He excelled in originality, was fond of inventing something new—churns, corn-planters, straw-cutters, windmills and 'perpetual motions,' beguiled many a wakeful night."

Dan Leonard,[6] (Dan,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Bridgewater, June 16, 1752: m. Oct. 15, 1775 Hope Clapp, b. Apr. 3, 1754, dau. of Elijah and Hopestill (Thomas) Clapp of Middleboro'.

He settled in Ware, Mass. He and his wife were devoted Methodists and the first Methodist sermon in Ware was preached at their house.

From Zion's Herald under date June 19, 1839, we take the following: "Died in Ware, Mass., May 7, 1839, brother Dan Leonard, aged 87 years. Br. Leonard was well-known by many of the old preachers as the first in this region who

*Capt. Thomas[5] Delano, was the son of Nathan,[4] (and Sarah [Tripp]) who was son of Jethro,[3] (and Elizabeth [Pope]) who was son of Jonathan[2] (and Mary [Warren]) who was son of Philip De la Noye.[1] opened his doors for Methodist preaching. His house was long the place of entertainment for the early pioneers of the cross. From the time of his conversion to his death, more than 40 years, he lived a faithful, persevering and consistent Methodist; and, as he lived, so he died, in the full hope of a glorious immortality beyond the grave. His sufferings during the last eight months of his life, were very severe, but he bore them with Christian patience and resignation. * * * By this dispensation of Providence, a large family has been deprived of a kind and devoted parent; the church in this place has lost one of its oldest members, a father in Israel, and the community a man who was respected by all who knew him."

His wife d. in Ware, July 12, 1833.

ZIBA LEONARD,[6] (Dan,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Bridgewater Oct. 13, 1756; m. May 5, 1783 Chloe Shaw of Middleboro', b. Aug. 24, 1764.

In 1774 he joined a company of minute men commanded by Capt. James Allen, to whom he was apprenticed to learn the carpenter's trade. The regiment to which he belonged had met for exercise on the morning of April 19, 1775 and while on parade the alarm of the beginning of hostilities reached them and they were ordered to march for Boston the next morning; on the way however this order was countermanded. He regularly enlisted at Milford May 2, 1775, was present at the siege of Boston, was discharged in December of the same year and afterwards reenlisted, went to Rhode Island during Gen. Sullivan's campaign and was at Little Compton and Howland's Ferry in charge of boats conveying soldiers from the island of Rhode Island at the time of the battle of Quaker's Hill. In the latter part of 1778 he went to the West Indies on board of a merchant sloop and, on the return voyage, was captured by the British and carried into the Tybee Roads, Georgia; upon being released by Commodore Parker he proceeded to Charleston and engaged on board the private ship Eustis for the purpose of fitting her for a voyage to Boston; just as the vessel was loaded, about the first of May, 1779, the threatened advance of the British from Georgia under General Provost caused an embargo to be laid on all vessels in the Port of Charleston. The enemy was repulsed about the tenth of May, but the embargo was not raised until July 17, after which he returned home.

After his marriage he resided in Buckland, Mass., where all his children, except the youngest, were born. About 1808 he removed to Ashfield where he d. July 7, 1845; his wife d. Aug. 10, 1840.

Captain JOSEPH LEONARD,[6] (Joseph,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) son of Joseph and Huldah (Dean) Leonard, was b. in Middleboro', June 2, 1754; m. May 5, 1779 Mary Scott, b. Feb. 14, 1760, dau. of John and Remembrance (Washburn) Scott of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania.

In early life he followed the sea and was for seven years engaged in whale fisheries. About 1779, his uncle David Leonard gave him some lands in Pennsylvania, upon condition that he would remove there and oversee other lands belonging to the donor. He accepted the gift and located in the town of Pittstown, Luzerne County.

At this period the Indians of this locality were very hostile to the white settlers who were obliged to take refuge in block houses from which they dare not venture out except in sufficient numbers to overpower the savages. At one time, however, Capt. Joseph went alone and unprotected for a physician for his sick wife; the Indians afterwards told him they saw him but would not molest him for fear of giving an alarm. A few days after this the settlers received warning of an expected attack from the Indians and retreated to Stroudsburg about seventy or eighty miles distant—the sick wife of Mr. Leonard being carried upon the back of a very strong man named Cary. Then followed the awful massacre of Wyoming.

After remaining away about two years the settlers returned to see what had become of their possessions. Their lands were held under what was called the Connecticut claim, which was afterward disputed by those holding claims under the Pennsylvania title; the matter in dispute being finally submitted to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, the Connecticut claim was pronounced invalid and those holding title under it were compelled to re-purchase their lands of the Pennsylvania Company and to subscribe to an oath of allegiance and fidelity. Joseph Leonard took this oath as is shown by the following copy of a certificate now in possession of his descendants:

"I do certify that Joseph Leonard, husbandman of the Township of Pittstown, in the County of Luzerne, hath voluntarily taken and subscribed the Oath or Affirmation of Allegiance and Fidelity, as directed by an Act of General Assembly of Pennsylvania, passed the Fourth Day of March, Anno Domini, One Thousand Seven Hundred and Eighty-Six.

Witness my Hand and Seal the 1st Day of February, Anno Domini 1787.

Timothy Pickering, J. P."

About a year after this the country was inundated with a terrible freshet, known at the time as the "big ice freshet," which literally swept off all the remaining property of Capt. Joseph, including even his house. His hopes and prospects being now all destroyed in this place, and becoming somewhat informed concerning the country in the valley of the Chenango, Broome County, N. Y., he determined to go and see that place, and finally removed his family, being obliged to travel in Indian canoes. This was in the early part of summer, and he made a hut of poles covered with bark, in which to live until fall.

He was one of the first white settlers in this region, and, with another man, took a lease of the Indians for one mile square of land near what is now the city of Binghamton, the yearly rent of which was to be two barrels of corn "as long as trees grew and water ran." This lease was afterwards pronounced illegal, and they obtained another from the Boston Company. The Indians were very pacific and greatly aided these early settlers, who were obliged to live in the most primitive fashion, making bread of corn pounded in the top of a stump which had been burnt out for the purpose.

In Wilkinson's "Annals of Binghamton" we find the following: "The first white man who made a permanent settlement in what is claimed for the village vicinity, was Captain Joseph Leonard, who was from Bridgewater, Massachusetts. Soon after came Colonel William Rose from Connecticut, and then Whitneys from Columbia County. At the time of their settlement (1787) their nearest white neighbors were at Tioga, a distance of forty miles." "In consequence of a freshet in 1794, a great scarcity was felt, during which a Major Stow shouldered a bushel of wheat, in which the whole neighborhood had a common share, and started for Wattle's Ferry to mill, a distance of more than forty miles, carrying his grist the whole distance on foot. On his return the neighbors held a sort of thanksgiving over their 'short-cake' and a pound of tea which he had purchased, and, as they had no hog's lard, they substituted bear's grease to make their cake tender."

The farm of Capt. Joseph Leonard is still owned by his descendants. The title of "Captain," by which he was generally known, was received from the commission which he held in the militia.

Silas Leonard,[6] (Joseph,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Middleboro' Feb. 15, 1757; m. 1, —, 1780 Anna Tyler of Kent, Conn., who d. May 10, 1796 at the age of 37, and he m. 2, Jan. 2, 1797 Hannah Hawley of Kent.

He served as a soldier in the Revolutionary War. In 1780 he removed from Middleboro' to Kent, Conn., where he purchased a farm on which he resided until his death and which is still owned and occupied by his descendants. In early life, it is said, he was remarkably fond of walking long distances and at one time walked to Boston and back, preferring to go in this way rather than to ride, although he had a number of horses. Upon this occasion he procured from relatives in Boston some family records which for safe keeping he carried in his hat, as was customary in those days. Upon his return his daughter Hannah wishing to hasten the fire in the fireplace seized her father's hat with which to fan it, whereupon the papers fell into the fire and were consumed: there is no evidence that the items were ever collected a second time, much to the regret of the present generation.

He d. in Kent Dec. 15, 1845; his wife Hannah d. April 24, 1840 aged 73 years.

Dr. RECOMPENSE LEONARD,[6] (Benjamin,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob[2] Solomon,[1]) youngest son of Benjamin and Mary (Reneffe) Leonard, was b. in Ashford, Ct., Aug. 31, 1771: m. 1, May, 1798 Eunice Huntington of Hampton, Ct., who d. May —, 1807, and he m. 2, June —, 1809, Mrs. Olive (Hyde) Cummings of Palmer, Mass.

He was a physician of high repute and great success in Ashford and Chaplin, Ct.

The husband of one of his granddaughters says of him: "Dr. Recompense Leonard was a man of marked character. Whilst others seemingly delighted to tell him their secrets he invariably kept his own. It is related of him that upon one occasion he was forced into a lawsuit by a person noted for being much in lawsuits, who had employed quite a number of lawyers on his side; all were on the qui vive to know who the doctor had, but, when the hour set for the trial had arrived, he appeared and, pleading his own case, won it, much to the chagrin of his opponent. In his profession he was a man much ahead of the times in which he lived. He came to the conclusion that a great improvement could be made on the old routine of bleeding, calomel and opium, and did a good deal of hand-rubbing, discarding many of the poisonous drugs in use. He was much called upon in hard cases—his patients so uniformly got better and recovered, that neighboring physicians declared there was never anything the matter with them. The leather coat he wore, made to his order, attracted much attention, (rubber garments were then unknown.) He had medicines of his own compounding which became much celebrated and in high repute—one was called the Peruvian Drops—the receipt for making of which was lost at the time of his death.

"He was a man of quick wit; seldom indeed did an associate get ahead of him in conversational repartee."

He d. in Chaplin, Conn., May 3, 1846; his widow d. June 14, 1849.

The children of Recompense and Eunice were—

David Augustus Leonard,[6] (David,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) eldest son of David and Mary (Hall) Leonard, was b. in Bridgewater, Sept. 25, 1771; m. Feb. 9, 1797 Mary Peirce, b. May 31, 1777, dau. of Capt. Job and Elizabeth (Rounseville) Peirce of Middleboro'.

From a sketch of his life by his grandson, Col. John Hay, we take the following:—"He was a boy of refined and studious disposition, much given to books from his earliest days. He was prepared for college by a famous instructor, Abner Alden, and was graduated from Brown University in 1792; he delivered the class poem, a function which was repeated by one of his grandsons sixty-six years later. He had embraced the Baptist faith while a student, and had been baptized, according to the rigorous fashion of those days, by immersion in the Seekonk river, a hole having been cut in the ice for that purpose. After leaving college he taught school for a while, at the same time pursuing his theological studies, and was ordained as a minister on the 17th of December, 1794, at Bridgewater, Massachusetts; the sermon on the occasion was preached by the Reverend Dr. Thomas Baldwin. In 1796–7 he preached on the Island of Nantucket.

"On the 9th of February, 1797, he was married to Miss Mary Peirce, fifth daughter, and ninth child of Captain Job Peirce* and Elizabeth Rounseville. * * * * Mary, or,

*For full account of Capt. Job. Peirce and family see "The Peirce Family" by Gen. Ebenezer Weaver Peirce, of whom Col. Hay says he is "the most distinguished representative of that family in this country, who having lost his right arm in battle has with infinite industry and patience employed his left hand in untiring labor for the preservation of the fast vanishing chronicles of his race."

David A. Leonard

as she was commonly called, Polly Peirce, was a woman of remarkable attractiveness and extraordinary strength of character. She was thoroughly and carefully educated and formed a most congenial and helpful consort to a man so refined and scholarly as Mr. Leonard. He went soon after his marriage to New York and there filled the pulpit of the principal Baptist Church of that city, which was then established in Gold Street—the same society which now worships in Park Avenue.

"His brother Bernard Leonard was at that time a prosperous merchant in New York; Leonard Street takes its name from him. David A. Leonard had a distinguished position among the cultivated men of his day; he was often called upon to speak on occasions of public interest. Among the addresses which were printed and have been preserved are 'A sermon delivered at Holmes Harbor, Martha's Vineyard on the death of Mr. John Holmes Nov. 1st, 1795;' 'An Oration at Nantucket at a celebration of a Festival of St. John by the Union Lodge in 1796;' 'A funeral sermon in Gold Street Church Feb. 16, 1800;' 'An Oration on the death of Gen. George Washington delivered in the First Baptist Meeting House in New York Feb. 22, 1800;' 'Oration at Raynham, Mass., July 5th, 1802;' 'Oration at Dighton, July 4, 1803;' 'An Oration on the Acquisition of Louisiana, delivered at Raynham May 11, 1804.' He removed to Bristol, Rhode Island, in June, 1805.

"On account of a change of religious views in the direction of Unitarianism he relinquished his place in the Baptist Church and entered upon commercial life in which he was reasonably successful. In 1806 he was appointed by President Jefferson postmaster of Bristol, a position which he held for eleven years. He resigned it in 1817, as he had at that time resolved to go to the West. His life in Bristol was one of intense activity. It addition to his duties as postmaster and the cares of his commercial house, he was secretary and principal manager of the Bristol Insurance Company and editor and proprietor of the Bristol Republican. He gave a great deal of time to the education of his family, and yet found leisure amid these multifarious occupations to make a translation of the New Testament. This last work was never published, the manuscript having been destroyed in the terrible storm of September 23, 1815, still remembered by the old people of Bristol, which wrecked his wharves and his storehouses that stood by the water-side.

"His intention in going West was to establish his family at Vincennes which was at that time the most flourishing town in Indiana. He never reached that place. His health, already gravely impaired, failed on the journey. Arriving in December at the little town of Laconia, near the Ohio River, in Harrison County, he concluded to go no further. He bought a considerable estate in land, but was unable to continue the active habit of life to which he was accustomed. He died on the 22d of July, 1819. After his death his widow had occasion to display her remarkable powers of intelligence and character. She was forty-two years of age, with eleven children; separated from home and friends by a distance hardly conceivable in these days of railroads and telegraph, with a property consisting almost entirely of unproductive land. It was not only without dismay or repining, but probably with no idea that her conduct was especially meritorious, that she betook herself to the care of her large family and the management of her affairs. She had the success which was due to her merit. The matron of the Proverbs was not better spoken of at the city gates than was this notable widow, on both sides of the Ohio River. She lived to see her family well established in life, and died on the 2d of October, 1836."

He d. July 22, 1819; his widow d. Oct. 2, 1836.

Rev. ZENAS LOCKWOOD LEONARD,[6] (David,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Bridgewater, Jan. 16, 1773; m. Sept. 1, 1799 Sally Fiske, dau. of Deacon Henry and Sarah (Fiske) Fiske, b. in Sturbridge, Mass., Apr. 4, 1782.

A somewhat extended account of him may be found in Dr. Sprague's "Annals of the American Baptist Pulpit," * which in an abridged form is as follows: His early years were spent upon his father's farm, where he acquired habits of industry and a knowledge of agriculture that he turned to good account in after life. July 1, 1790, he was baptized and became a member of the First Baptist Church in Middleboro'. Shortly after this he began a course of study preparatory to entering college, being assisted by his brother, David A., then a member of Brown University, and partly by the Rev. Dr. Fobes, a professor in the same university. In May, 1792, he was admitted to the Sophomore class of Brown University, from which he was graduated with honor in September, 1794.

On leaving college he began a course of theological study under the direction of Rev. William Williams of Wrentham; but, at the urgent request of his friends, began immediately to preach, being regularly licensed according to the order of his denomination by the church at Bridgewater. He spent a short time in Sandwich, Provincetown and Templeton, after which he determined to carry out a plan previously contemplated of making a tour through the New England States and New York. On his arrival at Sturbridge, at the close of his second day's journey, he was led to abandon the project and accept an invitation to preach to the Baptist Church of that town. He was ordained Sept. 15, 1796, and ably and faithfully served as pastor of this church for thirty-six years, when

*See page 347 "Annals of the American Baptist Pulpit."

 An illustration of the church on Fiske Hill, Sturbridge, Mass., is given with a plan of the pews as remembered by Mr. Manning Leonard. The building was raised June 3, 1784: Hon George Davis in his "Historical Sketch of Sturbridge" says: "On the southern declivity of this elevation was situated the neat and comfortable Baptist Church. Here those families [the Fiskes] with others of that denomination, in various parts of the town, worshiped more than half a century. The Rev. Zenas L. Leonard was the watchman on this watchtower. Mr. Leonard 'was in season and out of season' in his failing health obliged him to request a dismission. In addition to his pastoral duties he was for many years engaged in instructing the youth of the neighborhood, having students in his family who were fitted for college and the prominent positions of business life. He also owned and cultivated a farm, upon which he was in the habit of performing regular labor. He was elected by the citizens of the town to represent them in the councils of the state for six terms.

While in the midst of a vigorous manhood he was visited with a malady (softening of the brain), which brought a cloud over his intellect. He d. in Sturbridge June 24, 1841. His wife "was a granddaughter of the first two settlers of Sturbridge—Lieut. Henry Fiske and his brother, Dea. Daniel Fiske, who pitched their tent in 1731 on what has been known ever since as 'Fiske Hill.' Her father was Dea. Henry Fiske, son of the first named, and her mother, Sarah, dau. of the last named. Although she was very young when she assumed the responsible duties of a minister's wife, yet she developed at once a remarkable capacity for her position. Their new home was established in sight of her birthplace during the first year of this century, and was the center of attraction to her for nearly sixty-eight years. In this delightful home, where was always dispensed a courteous and bounteous hospitality, friend and stranger alike welcomed and needs supplied, they reared a family of seven children." After a long, active, and useful life, she d. in Southbridge at the house of her son, July 18, 1868.

Their children were—

1265. Henry Fiske,[7] b. Aug. 14, 1800; d. Jan. 23, 1831; m. Aug. 28, 1828 Ann Frances Burrough, dau. of Robert S. and Esther (Armington) Burrough of Providence, R. I., b. Sept. 25, 1806; graduated from Brown University, 1826; taught an academy in New York; studied law with Nathaniel Searle, LL. D., of Providence; failing health prevented his entering upon the practice of law and the last year of his life was spent at his father's devotion to the spiritual interests of his charge." In 1822, a new church was erected, nearer the center of the town and this building was subsequently demolished. The artist is somewhat inaccurate in the representation of the vestibule doors of which there were three, one in front and the others on each side, and next to the main building. From the vestibule two winding flights of stairs led to the broad gallery which extended around three sides of the audience room. The pew marked "Dea. Noyes," should be Dea. Lyon.

until his death, being the leading physician of the place for nearly sixty years and eminently successful. He was a man of great benevolence and kindness of heart, of ready sympathy with all forms of suffering. He had a high and manly sense of honor and never failed to utter his hearty contempt against all wrong, knavery or fraud, although at the same time he often framed an apology for the wrong-doer where the circumstances furnished any ground for so doing. He was greatly interested in the cause of education and held in especially high esteem the welfare of the academy established in Sandwich. "After a long life spent in usefulness to his fellow men he died Jan. 25, 1849, in the peace and hope of the Christian; in the enjoyment of that religion which had wrought so powerfully on his character and furnished so many of the motives to his conduct." His widow d. Sept. 30, 1857.

He was the seventh son of a seventh son and the youngest of twelve children. In a very interesting autobiography written when he was in his eighty-third year he gives a somewhat extended account of his childhood: two years after the death of his father he went to live with Capt. Jotham Ames where he remained from the time he was eight years old until 1801 when Capt. Ames removed to New York state after which he lived with William Mitchell two years. Later he learned the trade of blacksmith from Capt. Abraham Washburn with whom he remained until he was twenty-one, afterwards being in partnership with him and later with Capt. Abial Ames. In the fall of 1814 he was drafted "to go to Plymouth for the defence of that town;" after remaining there a month the whole regiment was discharged. This he says was the beginning and end of his army life. He continued to reside in West Bridgewater, an honored citizen, until his death Feb. 21, 1879: his widow d. Nov. 4, 1880.

The children of Nahum and Rhoda were—

ELBRIDGE LEONARD,[7] (Asa,[6] John,[5] Samuel,[4] Samuel,[3] Samuel,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Worthington, Mass., Feb. 10, 1803; m. Jan. 19, 1843 Phœbe Augusta Kellogg of Ashtabula, O., whose parents went to Ohio from West Stockbridge, Mass., in 1811.

From an obituary memorial published in the Willoughby Independent, we quote the following:

"When he was fourteen years old his father died leaving a family of eight children of whom he was third in age. It was his work to be the support of his widowed mother, and assist in taking charge of his brothers and sisters. Later he took his father's farm, assuming the responsibility of paying the claims of the other children, and there he lived with his mother until her death. On the nineteenth of January, 1843, he married Phœbe A. Kellogg of Ashtabula. To them were born five children, four daughters and one son. In 1857, they sold their farm and moved to Meadville, Pa., to enjoy the better advantages of society and education for themselves and their children. In 1865 they moved to Collamore, O., where they lived four years. During their residence in Collamore, their only son, William, then in the first years of manhood, met an untimely death by drowning, while bathing in the lake. For the past fourteen years, Mr. Leonard has lived in Willoughby. His wife died Sept. 16, 1873, since which time his home has been kept for him by his daughters. His disease was bronchial consumption, from which he had suffered for years. His strong will turned in the right direction, led him through a steadily progressive life to a quietly triumphant death. He was ready to die, feeling that his work was done and tired of the burden of years." He d. in Willoughby, O., May 18, 1883: he and his wife are buried at East Cleveland.

Their children were—

1386. Florence Augusta,[8] b. Nov. 10, 1843; m. Feb. 8, 1871 John Melancthon Page, b. Nov. 25, 1833, whose parents removed in 1828 from Northford, Conn., to E. Moses Leonard,[7] (Moses,[6] Samuel,[5] Moses,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Canton, N. Y., Apr. 14, 1805; m. 1. Sept., 1827 Lucina Thornton of Gill, Mass., who d. May 15, 1836, and he m. 2, May 25, 1837 Semantha Hamilton of Pierrepont, N. Y.

He was a "mighty hunter." From an obituary notice in the Potsdam Courier Freeman of Sept. 19, 1888 we take the following:—"He was born in Canton, but lived most of his life on the farm where he died, in Pierrepont. From the age of 20 to 75 it is estimated that he killed 1,500 deer, 300 wolves, 45 panthers, more than 100 bears besides many foxes, otter and other fur-bearing animals. He had a passion for the Adirondacks and visited them several times during the year, and pursued his favorite occupation until the infirmities of old age warned him to desist. He on several occasions encountered bears and panthers at the imminent risk of his life, but his courage and agility never deserted him and he always came off victorious. * * * He lived a life of sterling honesty, trusted in God and did good to his fellow men."

We also make extracts from an article published several years before his death:—"Moses Leonard, more familiarly called Uncle Mose or Great Hunter, was born in Canton in 1805, being the third child born in that town. * * * His childhood was spent in helping to clear up the forest, and attending such schools as the condition of the wilderness would permit; but when quite young he developed a talent for hunting and trapping. About the year 1820 his father moved to Pierrepont, the present residence of Uncle Mose, and since then his time has been spent mostly in the South Woods, and no doubt he has been one of the most successful hunters who ever entered these woods, showing a wonderful sagacity for finding game; he could detect the presence of wolves by signs that no other hunter would notice. * * * In deer hunting he was very successful, killing in one season a hundred, many of them being killed on the run. * * * At one time he found a den of black bears and crept in upon his hands and knees and in the darkness killed four by shooting at their glistening eyes, and then he went in and drew them out. * * * Many of the young he captured alive and it was not uncommon to see a pet at his residence. * * * He says he has killed forty-four panthers, killing five in one day; some of them measured ten feet in length. On one occasion he caught a large panther which drew the trap and clog to a precipice and it was necessary to go down to get him; so Uncle Mose tied a rope under his arms and his comrade let him down to where the panther lay alive and well; but Uncle Mose soon dispatched him and was hauled up, panther and all."

He d. in Pierrepont, Sept. 10, 1888: his widow survives him.

"He was one of the pioneer settlers of Pierrepont, having lived on the farm where he died nearly sixty years. He was one of thirteen to form the first M. E. class in the town, holding their meetings in the school house, and was leader of the class for many years. He was even ready to extend the helping hand and was genial and friendly. He entertained naught but kindly feelings toward all, and, as was fitting, received and enjoyed the esteem and confidence of a large circle of friends and neighbors.

"His occupation was varied, as was that of many others of the early settlers, combining with his farm work that of blacksmithing and spending the winter months in hunting and trapping, meeting the difficulties along his path with untiring zeal and courageously overcoming obstacles that we of today can scarcely comprehend. In politics he was identified with the Republican party, was a thorough temperance worker and a helper and co-worker in all enterprises that pertained to the welfare of the community." [From the Potsdam St. Lawrence Herald, May 23, 1890.]

JOHN LEONARD,[7] (Francis,[6] Jonas,[5] Moses,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) son of Francis and Sarah (Blake) Leonard, was b. in Warwick, Mass., June 13, 1806; m. Mar. 5, 1832 Mrs. Louisa* (Conant) [Raymond] Jones, b. in Warwick, June 8, 1798, dau. of Asa and Martha (Merriam) Conant and widow of Levi Jones.

In his early manhood he taught school in his native town; in the year 1829, accompanied by his cousin Jonathan Blake, he went to Illinois and located near Lowell, LaSalle Co., where he carried on farming quite extensively for twenty years. In 1849, he removed to Galesburg in order to give his children better educational advantages: he bought a small farm near town on which he resided for several years.

He was an earnest Christian and an active member of the Presbyterian church of which he was made a deacon. In 1856 he was employed by the American Bible Society and was engaged for two or three years in Bible work, canvassing Knox and adjoining counties; and subsequently was chosen City Missionary of Galesburg, in which work he spent the remaining years of his life. As a sample of his faithful devotion to this work, we quote the following from his memoranda of one year's labor, that of 1860: "Visited 1007 families; personal conversation with 953 persons; prayed with 412 families; made 376 visits to the sick; attended 150 prayer meetings; also 44 funerals." His reports for several years were similar to this. In all his life he was striving to do some kind deed or speak a word that might have a good influence on those with whom he was brought in contact. Feeling the need of a mission S. S., in 1858 he called a meeting in the passenger depot of the C. B. & Q. R. R., and organized a school which he conducted for some time in the depot and passenger coaches until the citizens helped him build a chapel, in which the school is still carried on. In 1863 he entered the service of the Christian Commission but was soon obliged to resign on account of ill health.

He d. in Galesburg Jan. 13, 1865. His name still lives in the hearts of all who knew him and his earnest untiring labor for the advancement of Christ's kingdom is known to all the community in which he lived. He was especially beloved by the children for whom, even to the poorest ragged child on the street, he always had a kind word: at the head of his grave stands a monument given by the Mission S. S. which bears the inscription "The Children's Friend."

Aug. 16, 1827 Lucy Wait, b. July 25, 1800 in Springfield, Mass., dau. of Daniel and Dolly (Gates) Wait then of Utica, N. Y.

When a lad he lost his leg by amputation in consequence of a fever sore and for the remainder of his life was dependent upon crutches. He was not strong and never enjoyed good health, but in spite of his weakness led a useful and busy life. He began the study of law, but not finding it congenial to his tastes abandoned it at the end of two years, and after learning the trade of tailoring made this his business for some years, first in Champion and later in Pamelia, N. Y. His father having taken up land in Hermon he eventually joined him in subduing it, living for twenty years with his family on a farm, after which he removed to the village of Hermon and engaged in the dry goods and grocery business. He filled a number of public offices, among them that of assessor, collector and school commissioner, while he held a commission as Justice of the Peace for many years. His good judgment in business matters made his advice and counsel often sought for by his neighbors. He and his wife were faithful and consistent members of the Congregational Church and assisted in many ways in forwarding the work of the church.

Benjamin Cutler Leonard,[7] (Ezra,[6] Nathan,[5] Ezra,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) eldest son of Ezra and Laura (Howe) Leonard, was b. in Sennett, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Mar. 9, 1823; m. Oct. 9, 1849 Martha Austin, dau. of Sedgewick and Abigail (Comstock) Austin of Sennett.

"He received the education of the district school near his father's house in the primitive methods of those days. Fortunately, however, he was enabled to attend higher schools for a brief time at Skaneateles, at Elbridge, and at Onondaga, at which schools he acquired some knowledge of land-surveying which he subsequently put into extensive practice in the vicinity of his home and in various parts of Cayuga and Onondaga counties.

"He engaged in farming in 1847, on a part of his father's farm, but changed his location after his marriage in 1849 to the homestead where he afterwards lived and where he built his family residence in 1855.

"He has held most of the offices of the township and many positions of responsibility and trust and has enjoyed to a marked degree, the increasing confidence and respect of the people. He has with him his family of wife and two surviving daughters, and three young grandchildren to enliven his home and make occupation for the leisure of the pleasant household."

Bowers Howe Leonard,[7] (Ezra,[6] Nathan,[5] Ezra,[4] Moses,[3] John,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Sennett, N. Y., Oct. 31, 1835: m. June 3, 1858 Elizabeth Cuykendall, dau. of Wilhelmus and Mary (Austin) Cuykendall.

"He enjoyed in his earlier years the benefits of the common school and the usual experience of a boy on a farm. His mother died when he was eleven years of age, and his father before he was fifteen and he thus became the charge, and part of the family, of his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Clift, who had at this time the possession of the old home. Subsequently he attended for a short time the academy at Homer and the Institute at Clinton, N. Y. After leaving school he engaged in business in Connecticut, but the enterprise proving a failure he remained less than two years. He then visited the Western States, remaining nearly a year in Minnesota, but returned to New York in 1857. In June, 1858, he was married at Owasco, and engaged in mercantile business at that place which he continued some fifteen years, holding meantime the office of Postmaster for five years. For the better education of his five children he removed in 1876 to Auburn, the county seat, and soon after took some part in the city government: but retiring from that he gave attention to private business, spending some time in the Western States and journeying with his wife in California and Colorado, in which latter State he had mining interests. Of later years he has been partly engaged in closing the estate of a friend, and in giving some attention to the family genealogy." His interest in the latter has been unflagging and the students of this book are mainly indebted to him for so full records of the descendants of Nathan Leonard (145).

*Rev. Ivers Whitman was a Baptist clergyman located for many years in the state of New York, removed to Indiana and d. in Fort Wayne, Dec 23, 1868.

Maria Eaton,[6] b Dec 23, 1798, d. Mar. 23, 1872 in La Porte, Ind., dau. of Comfort she d. Aug. 4, 1862, in Fort Wayne, Ind., and he m. 2, May 9, 1865 Harriet M. Whitman, b. June 23, 1836, a sister of his first wife.

"He began the study of medicine with a preceptor, Dr. Brunson, in or near Greenfield, Ohio. He graduated at Willoughby Eclectic College in Ohio, and began practice at Fairfield or Greenfield. In 1851 he located at Fort Wayne, Ind., where he continued a very successful and skillful homœopathic practitioner.

"His daughter says in many respects he has one of the finest minds she ever knew. A prominent lawyer of Ft. Wayne (Judge Ninde), said of him—'most people in reading get the substance merely as they read, Dr. Leonard gets every word and the meaning of every word.' Although not a University graduate he had read much of ancient history and had obtained some knowledge of Latin and German. His wonderful memory is shown in his discussions of the battles of Cæsar, Hannibal, etc., of which he often spoke; he remembered (even at the age of 70) the movements of troops etc., down to the minute details.

"He was always a reticent man, one upon whose silence it was not possible to intrude; yet he was far from morose and no man ever lived who was more faithful to his friends. An instance of this is his leaving home to treat a friend ill of smallpox in another town, although he himself had never had the disease. He was exceedingly generous in his practice, treating the poor without compensation as faithfully as the richer patrons who were 'sure pay.'

"He is said to have been the only physician in Ft. Wayne, who saved any patients ill of cholera during the epidemic of 1851 or 1852. An old school physician of Fort Wayne once said he considered Dr. Leonard one of the finest diagnosticians he ever knew. A younger physician of his own school, said he believed him to be one of the best prescriptionists in the state.

"In his early life he was a frequent contributor to the press. He was at one time the best chess player in Fort Wayne and his office was the scene of many a lengthy hard fought chess game."

The History of Plymouth County, published in 1884, has quite an extended sketch of his life from which we quote at length:

"His youth and early manhood were occupied in the labor of the farm and his educational advantages were limited to the schools of that day. At the age of twenty he engaged in the dry goods trade which he followed for eighteen years, when he changed his vocation to that of farmer, and has successfully carried on the business of farming, in connection with the manufacture of wood and lumber, until the present time. About eight years since he purchased an orange orchard in Florida. * * * During his long and useful life Mr. Leonard has been elected to many offices in the gift of his fellow citizens and performed the duties with acceptance. He represented Bridgewater in the State Legislature for the years 1846 and 1847. He was elected selectman in 1855 and has served in that capacity and as assessor, overseer of the poor, member of the board of health, etc. He was appointed Justice of the Peace for the county of Plymouth by Gov. Bullock in 1867 and was appointed by Gov. Washburn and again by Gov. Long. He took an active interest in sustaining the government in the late war by procuring enlistments, filling quotas and caring for the soldiers and their families. He served as United States enrolling officer during the Rebellion. He has also been probation officer for Bridgewater from the first creation of the office. He has been a member of the board of the trustees of the Bridgewater Savings Bank from its incorporation and its vice-president for several years; in 1883 he was elected president which office he now holds. He has continuously held office in the Plymouth County Agricultural Society since 1846.

"Mr. Leonard is an attendant of the New Jerusalem Church, enjoys the confidence and esteem of his townsmen and has repeatedly served as referee in settling disputes to prevent litigation in various towns in the county."

He has taken much interest in the compilation of this work and has rendered much very valuable assistance in furnishing items, searching through records, verifying dates, etc. His wife d. Dec. 13, 1892.

Alvin Leonard,[7] (Dan,[6] Dan,[5] Joseph,[4] Joseph,[3] Jacob,[2] Solomon,[1]) brother of the preceding, was b. in Ware June 29, 1796; m. 1, Dec. 9, 1824 Laura Rice of Brookfield, b. Jan. 17, 1803, who d. Oct. 8, 1825, and he m. 2, Apr. 16, 1833 Ruth Combs, b. Mar. 27, 1803, dau. of John and Eunice (Shepard) Combs of Warren.

"His early educational advantages were limited to those of the average farmer's son in those days, but he made the most of these and always kept himself well informed of the progress of events without partaking of the ambitions of the great world of which he saw so little. Being the youngest of the family and his services not being of urgent necessity at home, he was apprenticed to a shoemaker and acquired quite a reputation for the excellence of his work in that business. He did not follow his trade continuously, but was at one time clerk in a general store and again employed in some capacity by the Hampden Manufacturing Company. With the exception of several years spent in Wallingford, Vt., and Ogdensburgh, N. Y., he was a resident of his native town. His life was principally spent as that of the New England farmer of the better class, possessing his home and working on year by year, content with doing well the task of each day.

"He was a good conversationalist, well informed upon current events, correct in his habits, generous to a fault, and a favorite among his friends. At one time he was interested in the military and held a lieutenant's commission. He took an active interest in politics and was an ardent anti-slavery Whig. In his later years he often recalled the time when he found a fugitive slave in his barn whom he promptly transferred to his house and, after a period of rest, assisted by substantial aid on his way to Canada. Very carefully was the secret kept, for the time, well knowing the penalty for harboring a fugitive slave.

"His business experience and familiarity with legal forms was such that he was frequently called upon for services which strictly belonged to the legal profession, and his opinion was generally accepted without question. He had strict views of morality and intense hatred of inconsistency and crooked dealing. He retained his faculties until past the age of eighty, when he received a stroke of paralysis, from which he d. Nov. 20, 1881. His widow to whom he largely owed his success in life survived him until Apr. 30, 1887, when she died at the home of her son in Westfield."

Mr. Newton served an apprenticeship to a blacksmith and later, having prepared himself for missionary work, joined the mission of the American Board at Mackinaw, Mich., where he taught the Indian boys. After nearly three years his health became impaired from overwork and he returned to Massachusetts.

Soon after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Newton went to LaPoint, Lake Superior (where a mission had been established): Mr. Newton here engaged as blacksmith to the American Fur Company with the understanding that he could give as much of his time to missionary work as he saw fit. After four years they removed to Green Bay, Wis., and in 1851 to DePere where Mrs. Newton still resides, tenderly cared for by her daughter, Mrs. Leonard. At the age of 86 she joined the Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution: is an actual daughter. After marriage she resided in Cincinnati where her husband was engaged in business; and where she d. of cholera July 31, 1850, her death being followed by that of her oldest son a few days later by the same disease. Her husband afterwards married her sister Frances M. Leonard,[7] (1271).

Mr. Spooner was actively engaged in hardware or iron business until about 1854, after which nearly all of his remaining life was given to public business. He filled many public offices with fidelity—among them being that of City Councilman, Clerk of the Courts, School Director, Collector of Internal Revenue for Ohio, and Mayor of Glendale, Ohio, where he resided after 1879. He was Senatorial Representative for Ohio to the Convention in 1860, which nominated Abraham Lincoln as presidential candidate.

In 1871, he published the "Spooner Memorial," and in 1883, the first volume of the "Records of Wm. Spooner and His Descendants," both of which contain full genealogical records of the Spooner family and their connections. The second volume was nearly ready for publication at the time of his death, which occurred at Glendale, Mar. 10, 1890.

to business, beginning when he was eighteen years old, as clerk in a dry goods house in New York. In 1835 he removed to Indiana, and was engaged in mercantile business in Noblesville for a short time, and later in Madison, from which place he returned to Massachusetts in 1844, and entered into the manufacture of cotton cloth in Southbridge, in which business he continued until 1863, when he retired from active business. He filled many offices of trust in the town, was appointed a Justice of the Peace in 1854 and held the office until his death. Was an active member of the Congregational Church, and a man noted for his integrity, benevolence, and moral worth; both he and his wife, who was a person of rare loveliness of character, were constantly doing deeds of kindness to those in sorrow or trouble.

To his interest in, and tireless efforts in tracing out, his genealogical connections, the readers of this book are indebted for its existence.

Mar. 19, 1883 Mary Elizabeth Phelan, dau. of John Phelan of Westfield, Mass. His earliest years were spent on his father's farm in Ware. In 1868 he engaged in the grain and milling business in West Warren and afterwards in Monson; after selling his interest in the business in 1871, he worked for several years in mills in Belchertown, Barre and Southwick, subsequently removing to Westfield where he leased the Little River Mills and soon after hired the Great River Mills, which he ran for several years in partnership with H. C. Bouton; he afterwards carried on the mills successfully alone until 1890, when he changed his business and opened a flour and feed store in Westfield. Finding that he could not be contented away from the sound of machinery he sought for another mill and, feeling also the need of a change of climate, he removed to Blackstone, Va., where he leased the Blackstone Roller Mills which he continued with great success for four years. In 1895 he went to Battery Park, Va., and engaged in the manufacture of bricks and is a member of the firm of Harrison & Leonard, contractors and builders; has taken all the degrees of Odd Fellowship and Free Masonry, except the 33d. He is a member of Trinity M. E. Church south, in Richmond, Va., in which city he makes his home, except during the brick-making season which lasts from April to November. He has no children.

Mar. 14, 1846, at Green Bay, Wis., dau. of Abel Densmore and Betsey (Leonard[7] (1195)) Newton. His early years were spent in the town of his birth. While in his third year in the High School he showed his loyalty and patriotism by enlisting when barely eighteen years of age, in Co. A, 45th Mass. Vol. Regt., but, to his life-long regret, his strength proved unequal to the strain of army life, and he was unable to accompany his comrades to the front. Until the past fifteen years his life has been mainly devoted to business, for which he made special preparation by Sept. 8, 1880 Katharine Helen Ammidown, b. in Southbridge, Mass., July 26, 1858, dau. of Henry Clay and Mary Town (Litchfield) Ammidown. He received his preparatory education from various private instructors and entered Harvard Medical School in the fall of 1876, but after one year's study at that institution he removed to New York city and entered the College of Physicians and Surgeons (now a department of Columbia) and in two years received the degree of M. D. He practiced one winter in Chicago, going from there to Boston where he has established a large and lucrative practice. Always fond of animals he became interested in comparative medicine as a pastime. At the solicitation of a friend he pursued the requisite course of study at the Harvard Veterinary School, taking the degree of M. D. V. in June, 1891. The following autumn he was appointed clinical lecturer in veterinary medicine and in January, 1892, lecturer in veterinary and comparative anatomy at that institution. In August, 1892, without solicitation on his part, he was given a three years' appointment and became a member of the Faculty of Harvard University; this position he still retains as an interesting and instructive recreation in the life of a busy practitioner of human medicine.

LIST OF ILLUSTRATIONS.

FRONTISPIECE—Manning Leonard.

Page.

8. Coat of arms.

123. David Leonard, engraved from a portrait painted by his son-in-law, Cephas Thompson, about 1810 (perhaps a year or two later). He was then about 76.

124. Mary (Hall) Leonard, by the same artist at the same time. She was about 60.

126. Residence of David Leonard, erected about 1780, and view of Nipinickit Pond opposite the house.

220. David A. Leonard and wife, Mary (Peirce) Leonard, from portraits painted by Mr. Thompson about 1805, when he was 34 and she 28. (These may have been painted two years later but this is doubtful).

223. Rev. Zenas L. Leonard, engraved from a silhouette likeness taken in Bristol, R. I., while on a visit to his brother David A. in 1806. He was then 33.

224. Baptist Church, Fiske Hill, Sturbridge.

227. Caleb F. Leonard, from portrait by Mr. Thompson painted in 1808. He was then 30.

229. Linus R. Leonard from portrait by the same artist in Aug., 1808. He was then 24.

231. James M. Leonard at the age of 30, from portrait by Mr. Thompson in 1822.

240. Rev. Levi W. Leonard.

286. Hervey Leonard.

288. Bowers H. Leonard.

307. Spencer Leonard.

350. Manning Leonard, at the age of 24, engraved from an ivory miniature painted in 1838 by George L. Brown.

397. John Myron Leonard.

411. Charles H. Leonard, M. D.

412. Bernard A. Leonard.
